COMMON POLICY IN CHINA?

BRITAIN AND U.S. MAY CO-OPERATE

JAPANESE BRAND SUNG'S TROOPS OUTLAWS

Washington, June 17.

The desire to secure an identical Anglo-American attitude towards events in North China was suggested at meetings of Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, and Mr. William Phillips, the Under-Secretary of State.

Following their conversations both Sir Ronald and Mr. Phillips were very reticent. But the British Ambassador admitted that two phases of the Sino-Japanese situation had been discussed.

The State Department, later, asserted that the discussions were chiefly factual and had not resulted in any changing of policy nor any definite diplomatic moves.

Meanwhile, Senator King introduced into the Senate a resolution authorising the Foreign Relations Committee to determine whether the Japanese policy in China was a violation of the Kellogg Pact or the Nine Power Treaty.—Reuter.

OUTLAWED TROOPS

London, June 17.

Reports from Tokyo state from to-day the Chinese troops in Charhar commanded by Sung Chien-yuan will be treated as bandits.

This decision is reported to have been reached at a conference of staff officers of the Kwantung Army held at Changchun.

The Japanese have taken this decision on the ground that General Sung's men have broken the truce of Taten signed February 2.—Reuter Special.

JAPAN QUESTIONED

The British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, to-day visited the State Department and discussed with high officials the Far East situation. He refused to discuss the conversations.

However, Sir Ronald did disclose that he had received factual reports from British, Chinese and Japanese quarters.

In any direction it was learned that Great Britain has taken the initiative in seeking information from Japan regarding the purpose behind the despatch of troops to North China.—United Press.

ASSURANCES

Nanking, June 18.

Assurances are given again by both the Chinese and Japanese authorities that the trouble in North China is expected to be satisfactorily settled, as both sides are sincere and conciliatory in their attitudes in all the issues outstanding.

Following an informal Sino-Japanese discussion in Nanking on Monday, it was officially intimated that a Sino-Japanese conference will be held at Kalgan for discussing of all problems.

However, no official intimation is given as to actual progress made in the negotiations for the settlement of the Charhar incident, in which four Japanese "Special Service" men were involved.—Central News.

JAPAN'S ASSURANCE

London, June 17.

It is learned in reliable circles that the Foreign Office has received from the British Embassy in Tokyo a despatch conveying Japan's assurance that she has not demanded the control of appointments of all Chinese officials in Charhar and Hopo.

It is explained that the local Japanese commanders made the demands upon the Chinese Government and they were by no means as extreme as were reported.—United Press.

PLANNING ATLANTIC AIRWAY

MAMMOTH CRAFT TO SPAN OCEAN

LUXURY CRAFT

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1884. Received, June 18, 8.30 a.m.)

London, June 17.

A trans-Atlantic passenger service by mammoth aeroplanes equipped with cinemas, dance floors and cocktail bars, is foreshadowed by the announcement of the proposed formation of the British Bellanca Aircraft Corporation, with a capital of £400,000.

Mr. Howard Kronick, of the Bellanca Aircraft Corporation of America, states that plans are being ahead for a plane construction plant at Speke, near Liverpool.

Mr. Kronick added that it was hoped that the plant would be ready within five months, and that the service will start early next year.—Reuter Special.

MLLE. HILZ'S RECORD

REACHES ALTITUDE OF 11,800 METRES

(Special to "Telegraph")

Paris, June 17.

Mlle. Maryse Hilz, the French air ace, beat her own feminine altitude record of 9,791 metres by reaching a height of 11,800 metres at Villa Coublay to-day.

The feat was performed in a Morane Saulnier chaser plane with a Gnome 60 horse-power motor.—Reuter Special.

BRITISH FEAT

London, June 17.

Captain Percival, aircraft designer, flew his Percival Gull light aeroplane early this morning from Gravesend to Oran on the North African coast, a distance of 1,400 miles, in 7 hours and 10 minutes.—British Wireless.

According to a police report, Mrs. H. F. Crapnell, of 557 The Peak, was bitten by a dog belonging to Mr. L. E. Lammett, of 650 The Peak, yesterday. The dog was sent to the Kennedy Town depot, whilst Mrs. Crapnell received medical attention.—United Press.

Rebel Ships Coming To Hongkong

NO IMPEDIMENT TO ENTRY ONE SEAMAN DEAD

The rebel Chinese cruisers Hai Chi and Hai Shen, which anchored at Chekwan, just outside British waters, yesterday, have announced their intention of coming into the harbour to-day, it is learned from authoritative sources.

No action is being taken to prevent the cruisers' entrance, and it is assumed that the Government is providing them with an opportunity of refuelling and reprovisioning.

No buoy has been allocated to the ships, and if they enter they will probably go to a naval berth.

CANTON'S REQUEST

Canton, June 18.

It is understood that General Chan Chai-tong, Commander-in-Chief of the Canton forces, has telegraphed to Nanking requesting that the Navy Ministry despatch the cruiser Haining to pursue the runaway warships, Hai Shen and Hai Chi.

Nanking has been asked to have the Haining standing by in case the rebel ships leave the vicinity of Hongkong waters and the shelter there afford.—Reuter.

SEAMAN'S DEATH

Of the three wounded ratings brought into Hongkong yesterday and sent to the Government Civil Hospital, Kuk Shing-kung, a seaman, who was in a serious condition when admitted, died at 5.30 this morning. He was said to be suffering from shell shock on admission, and it is now stated that his death was not due to wounds.

Another seaman, Young Shiman, who has a wound in the thigh, is still in a serious condition.

The officer, Wong Shun-king, is progressing favourably.

U.S. Silver Price

FLUCTUATIONS NOT DESIRABLE

Washington, June 17.

Silver industrial authorities in close touch with the situation, to-day, expressed the opinion that there is a growing belief among the western miners that the United States Treasury should cease meddling with the silver price.

Nine important operators say that they would welcome the price of $1.29 but say that it is most undesirable to have violent fluctuations in the price of silver.

Some miners say that they would prefer an increase in the price of base metals instead of an increase in the price of silver.

Thus, they say, it is because in most of the United States miners are unprofitable to produce complex ores unless a fair price can be obtained for the base metals.—United Press.

AMERICA AND FRANC

Washington, June 17.

Interviewed on the subject to-day, Mr. Henry Morgenthau refused to make any comment on the foreign reports that his activities had rescued the French franc during the recent financial crisis in France.—United Press.

ARABIAN KING'S HEIR

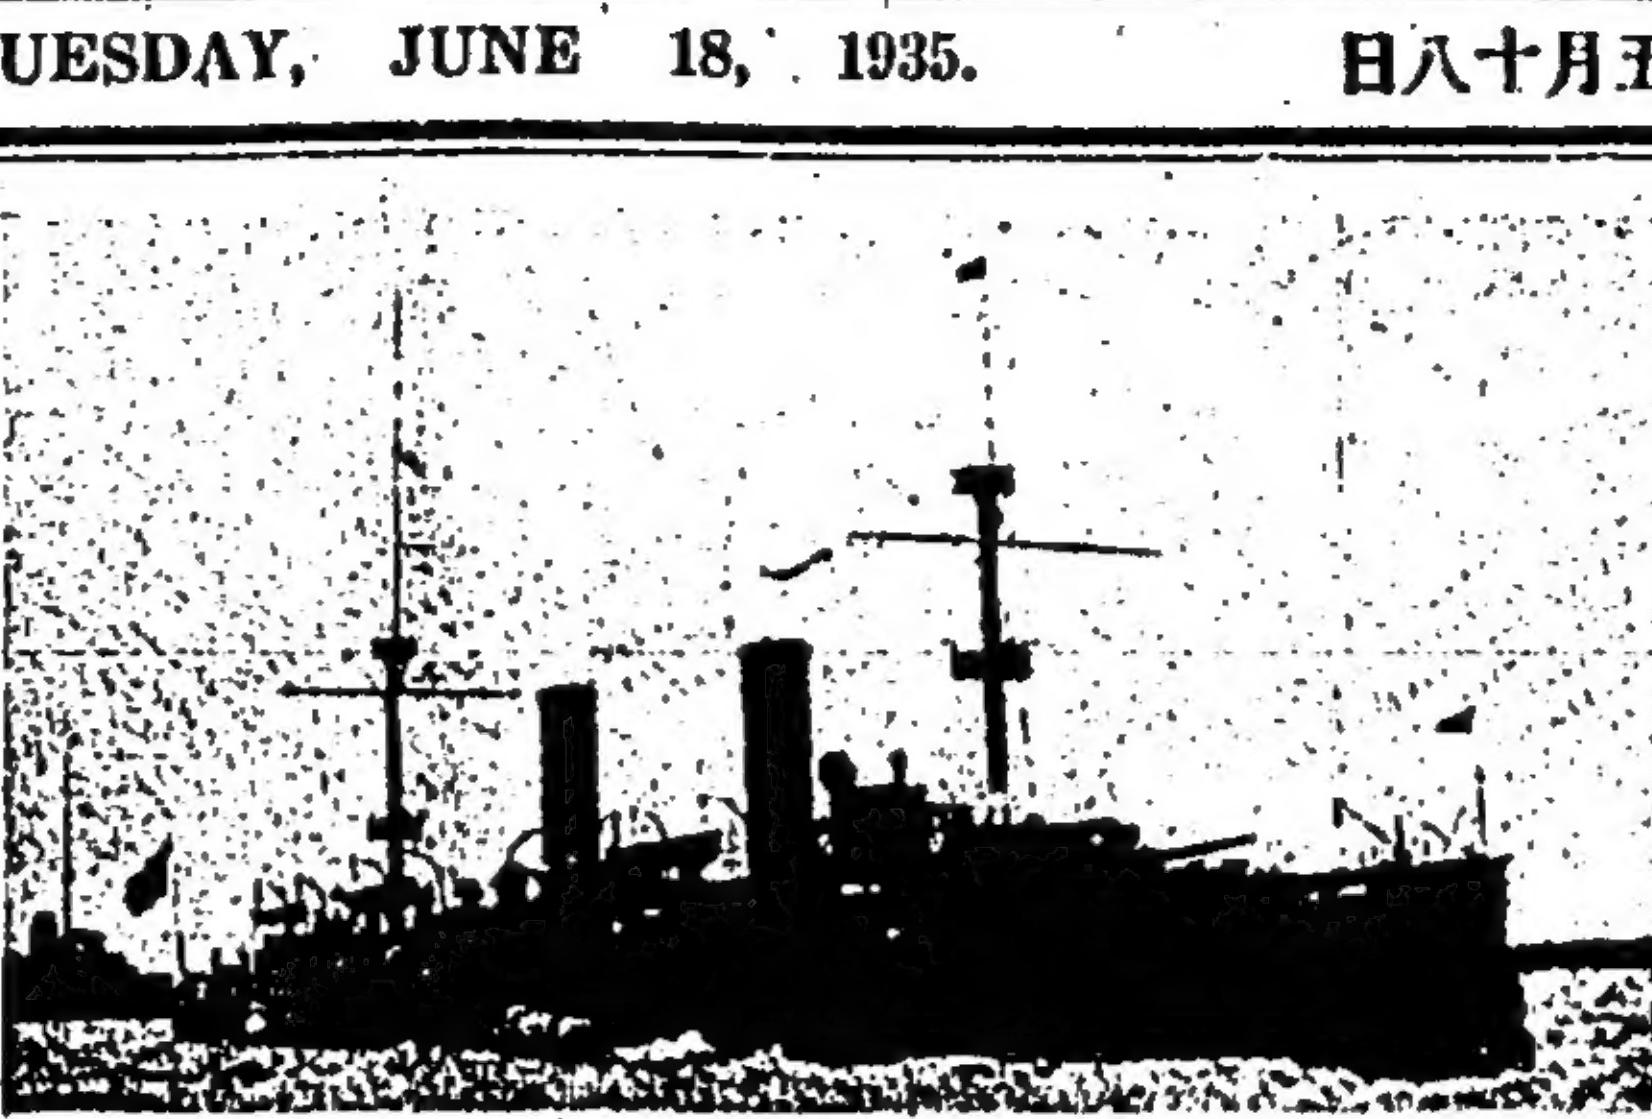

WELCOMED ON VISIT TO LONDON

London, June 17.

Amir Saud, eldest surviving son of King Ibn Saud, and heir to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, arrived in London to-day and was formally welcomed on behalf of the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare.

Although the visit is private, Amir Saud will be the guest of His Majesty's Government for the first two weeks of his stay, which will extend over four or five weeks, and a programme has been prepared for his entertainment during the period of official hospitality.

It is expected that the Amir will be received by the King in formal audience and will attend the third Court on June 25.—British Wireless.

The Chinese cruiser Hai Chi, which, with the Hai Shen, escaped from Canton yesterday and arrived at Chekwan, just outside British waters. A naval pinnace from the Hai Chi sent four wounded men into Hongkong, of whom three are now at the Government Civil Hospital.

Talequah, Okla., June 17.

The pretty young co-ed, Miss Lois Thompson, went to trial to-day on a charge of assaulting, with intent to kill, a Chinese student, Daniel Shaw, also known as George Hing Hsieh, formerly of Hongkong.

Miss Thompson admits that she fired at Shaw with a revolver when he accosted her one day on the university campus. Shaw was a student at the university. The girl claims she had reason to believe that Shaw had written notes of extortion to her.

To-day, the State Prosecutor, Mr. Owen J. Watt, declared:

"We will prove that the sister of the accused, Leila Thompson, wrote the extortion notes which the accused believed came from Shaw."

"Shaw," he said, "was the innocent victim of the accused's sister's inexplicable craving for publicity."—United Press.

Washington, June 18.

The Agriculture Adjustment Administration is seriously considering subsidizing the exportation of approximately 25,000,000 bushels of America's surplus soft, white wheat from the Pacific Northwest.

The idea behind such action would be to take care of an anticipated small surplus.

In this connection, considerable pressure has been exerted lately to revive the North Pacific Emergency Export Association.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt has signed the Bill fixing the duty free imports of Philippine copra at 6,000,000 pounds annually.—Reuter.

Washington, June 17.

State department officials to-day stated that they preferred that American oil interests whose business was affected by the oil monopoly in Manchukuo should make their own statements or announcements with respect to future policy there.

They admitted, however, that since the monopoly was operating under direction of the Manchukuo authorities it was expected that the American companies would be withdrawn from the field.—United Press.

SHANGHAI, June 18.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Chinese National Economic Council, yesterday, at Mr. T. V. Soong's residence it was decided that appropriations for financing various economic construction projects for the next financial year should not go beyond a total of $11,000,000, which represents a reduction of $10,000,000 when compared with figures for the previous year.

The reason given for the reduction is the present financial difficulty of the Central Government.

The next financial year of the National Economic Council will begin on July 1.—Central News.

BRITISH TRADE PROSPERS

EXPORTS & IMPORTS INCREASE

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, June 17.

British imports during May were £4,688,000 up on last April and £2,735,000 on May of last year.

There was an advance of £2,197,000 in exports, principally in articles wholly or mainly manufactured, notably vehicles, machinery and iron and steel manufactures.

The increased imports were mainly in respect of raw materials and articles mainly manufactured for British staple industries.—Reuter Special.

Geneva, June 17.

The International Labour Conference has adopted a Convention prohibiting the employment of women in mines.

The principle involved is already in force in most countries, but

India expects to eliminate underground female labour by 1939, while Japan has already accepted this bargain and has submitted it to the Soviet authorities.—Central News.

The Hongkong dollar was unchanged on opening this morning, the official rate being 2s. 4d. The market continued very dull, with the business rate 2s. 4½d. sellers and 2s. 4½d. buyers.

In London, silver prices were down a farthing. India sold, while China operated both ways.

The market was quietly steady.

BRITAIN BUILDS FOR PEACE

REALISES URGENCY OF AIR PACT

BALDWIN SNAPS BACK AT LANSBURY

London, June 17.

Something of Great Britain's policy and plans in connection with the protection of Europe against war and the defence of her own shores in case of aggression, was revealed when the House of Commons resumed to-day.

The particularly responsible and delicate business of achieving an aerial pact amongst the European powers was in the hands of Mr. Anthony Eden, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister stated when answering the somewhat critical remarks of Mr. George Lansbury, Labour leader. He had twitted the Prime Minister upon the duties of the Ministers without portfolio, of whom Mr. Eden is one, and Mr. Baldwin was curt in his reply.

The House was told something of the plans to expand the Royal Air Force and the steps which were being taken to guard against profiteering in the aircraft industry.

The House of Commons cordially welcomed the new Ministers at its reassembling after the Whitsun recess. The former Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, appeared relaxed in the House for the first time in six years. He sat resolutely on the Treasury bench, his eyes half-closed.

Mr. George Lansbury, the Labour leader, twitted Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the new Prime Minister, upon the duties of the new Ministers Without Portfolio and the duties of the new Lord President of the Council, who is Mr. MacDonald.

MENAGERY OF MUSIC

OVER-SUBSIDISED ART'S POVERTY

PARADOX IN PARIS

Paris. Intrigued by the fact that Paris provides a city the size of Boston with half a dozen symphony orchestras, that it probably offers more first performances than any other city in the world, and that in spite of this apparent violent musical interest, it plays the music it presents, with consistent badness, an investigation of this paradoxical position is being sought.

The reason seems to be too much encouragement.

France is the prototype of paternal government, and there are few human pursuits that can be described as "worthy" which are not in some way directly encouraged by the government by the simple method of handing some money to somebody. It appears that symphonic music is no exception. In this case the subsidy is handed out in proportion to the number of first performances of French works that appear on the year's programmes.

It might appear at first blush that this is a Splendid Thing, but that works out it gives reason to the opinion that the good old doctrine of private initiative and laissez faire has perhaps one or two good points.

QUALITY UNIMPORTANT

The first result is that orchestras are founded and thereafter operated by persons whose interests are financial rather than musical. Quality of performance does not affect the government subsidy. Granting that orchestras in other countries are directed by businessmen rather than philanthropists, which is far from being the general rule, their own interests impel them to give reasonably good performances to hold audiences and to support the box-office. This necessity does not appear in France, and the cheaper the overhead, the higher the profit.

The government does not even get good measure for its money, for second (unsubsidized) performances of new works are almost unheard of; competition is strong for excerpts from new works which require no more than three minutes playing time, and in a whole season the new music presented, if played at one concert, would not detain its audience much longer than its accustomed period.

The sad fact that in most Paris papers the critic's appreciation of a composition is in direct proportion to the impresario's friendliness with the advertising department of his paper, if not to the amount of interest shown in an easily calculable mathematical fashion in the critic himself, does not prevent composers from wishing wistfully that just once some one critic might be able to sit through his work from beginning to its not far distant end, mangled as it might be by the low-priced musicians recruited from the neighbourhood cafés for the renditions of symphonies.

UNFORTUNATE COMPOSER

To just how great an extent government benevolence makes it easier for the young French composer to get his work played may be judged from the recent case of Hector Fraggi, by no means an unknown composer (his opera "A quoi revient les jeunes filles" has been presented in Marseilles), who has exceptional relations with the persons who decide what music is to be played. Nevertheless this was his experience with a ballet

IDEALOGY LECTURES

The "Landjahr" is not an automatic apprenticeship to farm labour, it is explained; that is a department organised from the older Hitler Youth, and is called the "Land Hilfe" Dienst" (Land Helpers Service). The "Landjahr" really asks and expects little actual farm labour on which the peasants can depend in working their land; it is rather intended as a course in nature instruction for city children.

The boys and girls are housed in separate camps or homes, under a leader who has completed a special course of Nazi instruction. In the forenoon they are taken in groups to the land and set to small tasks such as weeding, clearing brush, or helping with the milking. Perhaps their most useful time is during harvest, when they relieve the regular workers of many small chores.

The groups return to their homes for the noon meal, and then are put to bed for a two-hour nap. In the afternoon they forget about farm work. Games and sports fill in the time until dusk, when they hike back for the evening meal and then listen to a lecture on Nazi ideology.

CRUEL CRITIC

Then the Gaite-Lyrique, putting on Reynaldo Hahn's operetta "Malvina," suddenly shifted the date of its first performance and made it coincide with the orchestra concerts, which took the critics away from all the first auditions.

One reviewer—Emile Vuillermoz of "Excelsior"—was alone in hearing Fraggi's composition. He reported that it was miserably played, and that without explanation the last section, listed on the programme, was omitted, the orchestra having had time that very morning only to run through once the earlier part of the composition, because it devoted most of its time to the preparation of that unknown work, Beethoven's "Heroic Symphony."

That was the result of Fraggi's years of effort to get his piece before the public, and now that the subsidy has been collected for its presentation, it is unlikely that it will be played again.—United Press.

YOUNG NAZIS TRAINED

SCHOOL RECESS ON FARMS

NO AIMLESS PLAN

Berlin. Summer school holidays this year will mean something more than aimless play for some 30,000 Prussian school boys and girls between 10 and 14 years of age. That number, it is estimated, will be taken to the country this summer in the second year of the Nazi "Landjahr" organisation for the agricultural training of the children.

Organised into brigades, mostly from industrial and tenement sections of the cities, the children are placed in camps of 40 to 50, or are housed in hamlets adjoining the land where they are to work and learn. Although they come from the less favoured sections of the cities, there are no weaklings among them, for they have been subjected to thorough physical tests, and have received the recommendation of their teachers.

COVETED TASK

Because the actual work is light and the comradeship element is strong, the "Landjahr" has become a coveted assignment among city school children. Many who completed the session last summer having failed to get an apprenticeship in the city, have returned to the villages and through contacts established in the summer have got jobs with neighbouring peasants or with artisans in the hamlets. That is one of the chief aims of the "Landjahr"—to instil a love of the land in the children and induce as many as possible to go to the country, although it is emphasized that there is no coercion toward this end.

To date the "Landjahr" has been confined to Prussia only. Last year 22,000 schoolchildren, 14,000 boys and 8,000 girls participated. The estimated 31,000 for this summer from Prussia is smaller than had been hoped, due to the lack of enough trained leaders. It may be another year before the service can be extended to the rest of Germany.—United Press.

"FATHER OF HIS COUNTRY" RETURNS TO P.I.

MANUEL QUEZON'S POLICY IS "AMERICA FIRST"

Manuel L. Quezon, whom the Philippines may honour with election as first president, in a portrait just completed by Leon Gordon, noted painter.

A bronze little man with gray hair is back in native Philippines Islands to face what very likely will be a glorious climax to a life of public service.

He is Manuel L. Quezon, for years the president of the Philippines Senate and guiding spirit of his people. Unless all signs fail, he will be the first president of the Philippines commonwealth, which is established under the recently enacted Philippines Independence bill.

So potent an influence in the life of his people has he become that rival political parties are expected to bury their prejudices to pay him the signal honour of making him the unopposed candidate for the presidency in the election to be held in September 15—an accolade comparable to George

PUTS AMERICAN INTERESTS FIRST

As he started on his 8,000-mile journey home from the United States he left behind an assurance of protecting American interests in the islands which, as president, he would be able to carry into effect:

The Filipinos thrill to the knowledge that they have been raised to the estate of free men, conscious that the situation has been made possible by American appreciation of the pricelessness of all people of independence.

"There can be no doubt that as Washington's ("Father of His Country" title, though Quezon has won independence for the islands through diplomacy in stead of force of arms.

Regarding the political future of the islands, he would only say: "Events shape and reshape themselves with startling rapidity in the Orient these days. A year or two may produce results and revolutions that no mind could to-day be expected to forecast."

As he journeys westward there echoes his heartfelt appreciation for the Island's independence:

"No nation in history has ever done so magnanimous and so unselfish an act as has been performed by the United States in granting the Philippines their independence. This act was not the result of revolution or duress. It was the voluntary act of a great nation in granting to a small dependent country the right of self-determination. Time can never remove from the minds of my people—those of this or any other generation—an appreciation of this act—unprecedented in the history of nations."

ADDISON'S DISEASE

NEW TREATMENT FOR OLD ILLS

Detroit. New treatments for Addison's disease, neuroses, and pernicious anemia and a new technique for building immunity against infectious diseases were reported in papers presented before the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Three of the four advances grew out of experiments upon the adrenal glands. These glands, triangular bodies about half the size of your thumb, are perched one on each kidney, like a cocked paper hat on the head of a New Year's Eve celebrator.

Dr. Arthur Grollman and Dr.

W. M. Firor of the Johns Hopkins medical school announced perfection of a method by which cortin, the hormone of powerful chemical substance secreted by the outer layer or cortex of the adrenal gland, can be made to combine with charcoal. This charcoal compound can then be taken through the mouth. In the stomach, the cortin is set loose from the charcoal.

When the sheep were given adrenalin, the hormone secreted by the central portion of the adrenal glands, their nervous condition was accentuated. But the sheep were calmed and their nervous responses improved by injections of cortin. It was believed cortin might prove suitable treatment for certain nervous conditions in human beings.

HYPNOSIS AID

The use of a cortico-adrenal extract to increase immunity against infectious diseases was seen in experiments reported by Dr. C. A. Fox and Dr. R. W. Whitehead of

F. A. Hartman of Cornell University.

Sheep were made to respond to stimuli which were so much alike it was impossible for the animal clearly to distinguish between them. A condition known as "experimental neurosis" was thus established.

When the sheep were given adrenalin, the hormone secreted by the central portion of the adrenal glands, their nervous condition was accentuated. But the sheep were calmed and their nervous responses improved by injections of cortin. It was believed cortin might prove suitable treatment for certain nervous conditions in human beings.

the University of Colorado medical school.

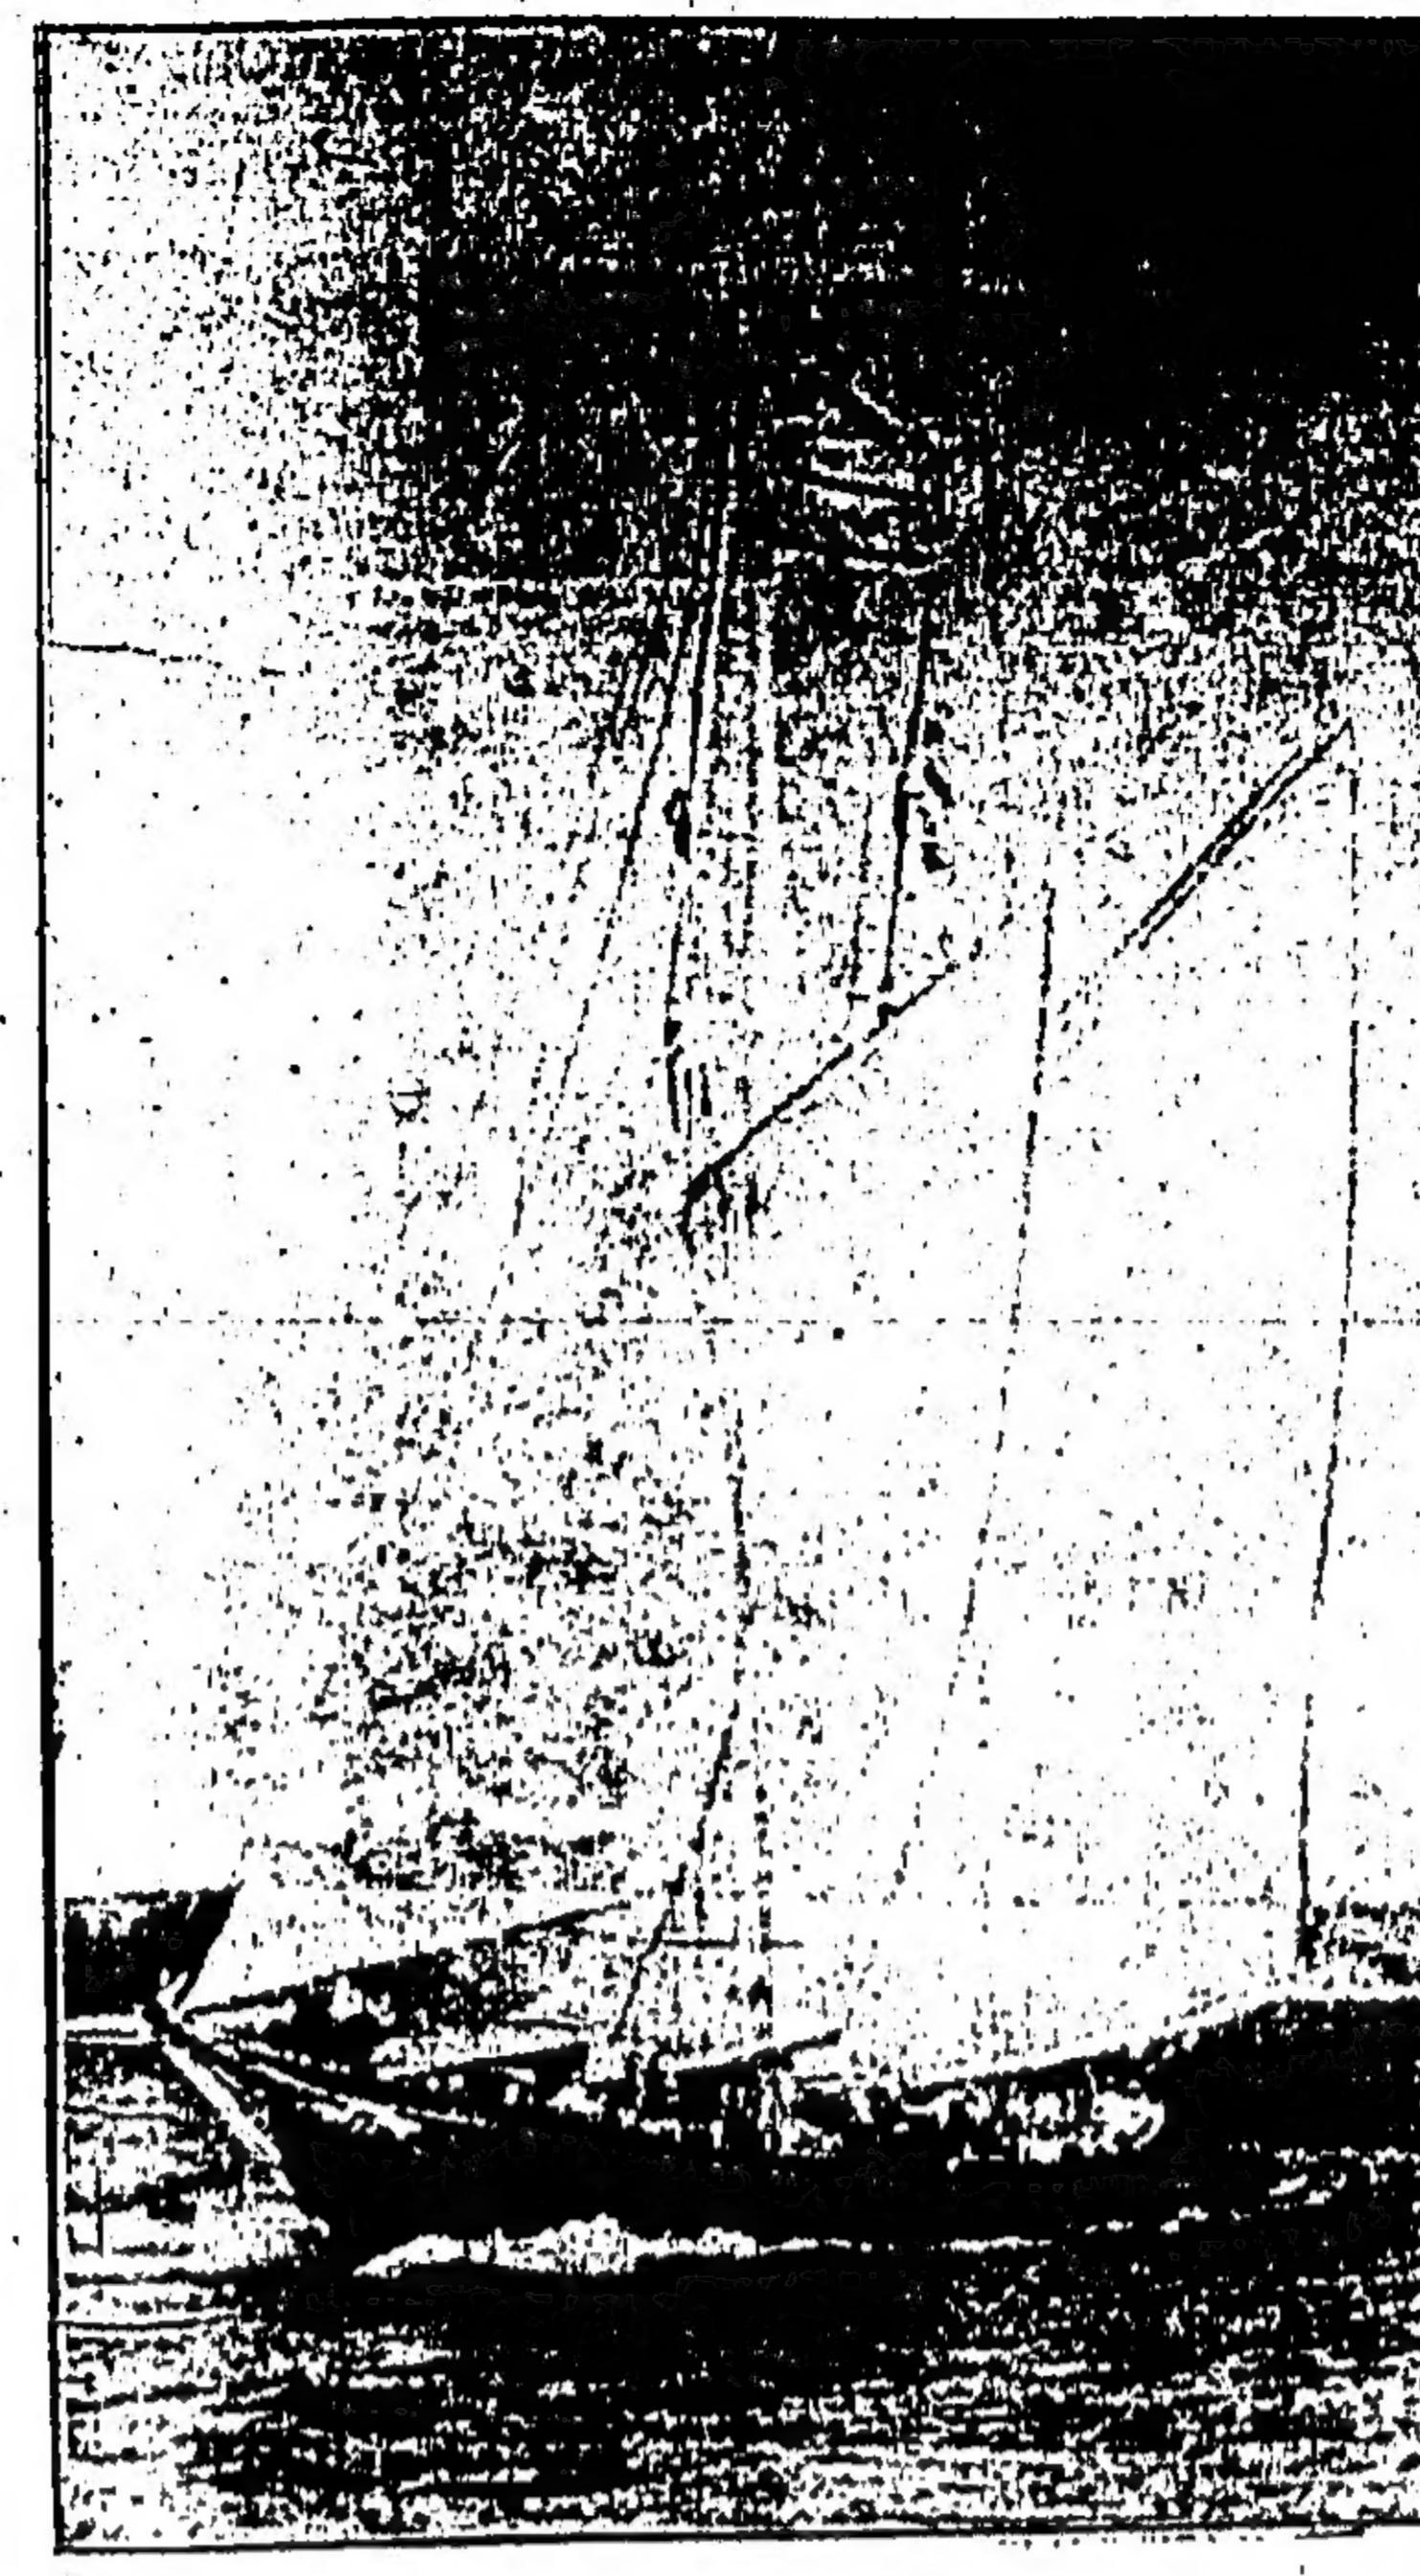

Removal of the adrenal glands in animals lowers their resistance to toxins, drugs, and infectious processes, and causes deficiency in ability to build up immune bodies in the blood stream.

The Colorado experimenters found that injections of a cortico-adrenal extract would aid rats in battling infections and developing immune bodies.

Contractions of the stomach by hunger can be reduced by the aid of hypnosis, Dr. H. L. Frick, Dr. R. E. Scantlebury and Dr. T. L. Patterson of Wayne University reported. A new and simple method of preparing vitamin G in pure crystalline form from liver extract was reported by Dr. Samuel Lepkovsky, Dr. William Popper, Jr., and Dr. Herbert M. Evans of the University of California.—United Press.

TWO EXECUTIONS

BIAS BAY COMMANDER SENT TO DOOM

Canton, June 17.
A further naval sensation was caused to-day by the sudden execution, by order of the General
Headquarters, of Tsai Teng-hui, commanding the anti-piracy forces at Bias Bay and his chief staff, Yang Hs-hsun.

The execution orders declare that Tsai was guilty of secretly possessing a large quantity of arms and giving aid to the pirates instead of suppressing them.

Both prisoners are natives of Walyang District, where the Tungchow piracy gang landed and escaped.

General Tsai Teng-hui formerly held the post of commander of a

13 MILLION STAMPS

HONGKONG POST OFFICE REPORT

Last year the Hongkong public purchased a total of 13,509,183
postage stamps from the Hongkong post office department, according to statistics issued in the Annual Report of the Postmaster General,
Mr. M. J. Green. The total revenue from this source was $1,429,099.

Five cent stamps proved the most popular 4,888,080 being sold.
Next in popularity were the two cent stamps, used for local postage for unsealed envelopes.
Over two million of these were sold.

A total of 1,634,400 ten cent stamps, used for postage on letters within the British Empire, were also purchased by the public.

A surprisingly large demand arose for post cards, 14,970 one cent and 7,180 four cent cards being sold.

The month preceding Christmas month was the busiest for stamp clerks, the total revenue in November being $112,336. September was the quietest month, the sales falling to $83,072.

DINA HOUSE

NEW BUILDING IN DUDDELL ST.

The need for more residential flats in the centre of the City will be met with the completion shortly of the new Dina building which has a frontage of 116 feet to Duddell Street and a depth of 87 feet at the ground floor level. The lower floors will be utilized as offices, while the upper floors will be devoted to flats, moderate rates being charged.

The architect of the new building which will be eight storeys in height, is Mr. Leslie Ross, F.R.I.B.A.

Of the eight storeys, the first,
second and third will be given over to offices, while the upper five will have ample provision for not less than 20 flats.

The flats will have one, two or three rooms of varying sizes and are intended for bachelors preferably, or married couples without children.
Almost every flat will have a balcony, or if situated at the rear of the building will be provided with a large terrace. All flats will be entirely self-contained, with entrance halls, bathrooms and kitchens, fitted with every convenience of the most up-to-date sort.

The sixth, seventh and eighth floors will be fitted with sliding shutters to the window, thus affording residents protection against the morning sun.

All flats will have their own servants' quarters conveniently built away from the main building.
An imposing structure seen from the road, the building has a reinforced frame, with pilasters running through the lower two floors, and a wide projecting cornice and plinth above. It will be generally finished with Shanghai plaster, with coloured plaster worked in chosen positions to give a pleasing effect to the whole.

Throughout the building, the windows are of steel and the wood floors of teak parquet.

The ground floors and basements comprise four separate premises each of an approximate area of 1,800 square feet.

The main entrance to the upper floors is centrally situated facing Duddell Street and leads to the lifts and main stairway.

THE PHILIPPINES PROBLEM

A distinct step forward in the realisation of Philippines independence is marked by the announcement of Mr. Frank Murphy, the Governor General, that September 17 has been fixed as the date on which the Commonwealth elections will be held. The plebiscite recently held showed a tremendous majority in favour of the new Constitution; it now remains for Filipino electors to vote for the first time for their own President, who will nominally control the destinies of the islands until independence becomes absolute ten years hence. Although there is general agreement that the transition period may be one of some difficulty, optimism is felt as to the future of the islands. For the next ten years, the United States will still remain responsible for protection of the Philippines. Congress recently passed a law authorising appointment of a military mission to the islands, and America will retain the right to intervene in Philippines affairs until the decade expires. The situation at the moment, and to some extent the future also, is somewhat influenced by the fears felt in some quarters that Japan may cast covetous eyes on the territory, and it is thus thought that an untoward combination of circumstances might lead the United States into an extremely difficult position, even after the task of getting out of the islands had formally begun. It is of interest, therefore, to note four suggestions which have just been put forward by Mr. Raymond Leslie Buell on behalf of the American Foreign Policy Association. He suggests that it might be better to grant independence right away, so as to avoid the difficult transition period; the signing of a reciprocity agreement between the United States and the Philippines, to save the islanders from economic collapse; the employment by the new Philippine Republic of expert advisers nominated by some such body as the League of Nations; and an international agreement among the Pacific Powers to guarantee

NOTES OF THE DAYFLYING FOR ALL

Herr Kronfeld's flight in an engined glider from London to Paris at a cost of barely 6s. for petrol and oil brings flying for the million appreciably nearer. Low-powered aircraft are clearly destined to do for the air what the light car has done for the roads. This flight between two capitals has shown something of their potentialities. It is now possible to own a machine which costs no more than an inexpensive motor-car; and to fly it for 9s. an hour. Besides being cheap and easy to manipulate, the engined glider has a low landing speed, which is a safety factor of no small importance to the intending pilot. The day is coming when most people will fly as a natural mode of transport. Cheaper flight will be of great service in encouraging air-mindedness. The light aeroplane is being rapidly developed abroad, notably in France, where the "flying flea" is extremely popular, and Germany, America and to some extent Britain, are studying this field of progress.

TAKING THE SKY TRAILS

Dr. Harlow Shapley recently told an "Open Night" audience at Harvard Observatory that in the last thirteen years 30,000 to 40,000 persons have visited the great astronomical research station in Cambridge, which periodically opens its doors to the public in the interest of widening popular knowledge of the cosmos. Progress in photography and the spectroscopic investigation of stellar light have greatly strengthened the ties of interest which have been built up in recent years between astronomers and laymen. The routine work of the professional astronomer is highly technical and pains-taking. The vast bulk of it is accomplished not by visual observation of the heavens but by extremely refined photographic methods. Expert interpretation of the product of telescope and camera is essential, and the advances achieved in equipment are immensely valuable in popularizing the revelations of the "sky patrol." Four motor-driven telescopic cameras record the happenings above Harvard's new Oak Ridge station. In Massachusetts throughout every clear night of the year, and mechanized observation of the sky is continuous at many other points throughout the world. Astronomy to-day leaves no stone unturned to enrich its knowledge of the cosmic creation. And the observations of laymen are encouraged through organized methods of reporting the flights of meteors and the study of variable stars. Real contributions to natural science have resulted from astronomy's refusal to "high hat" the man in the street. The gain in culture which has resulted from this entente cordiale between specialist and layman is worth noting, and the perspective realized from contact with supergalactic interests is one of unimaginable splendour. The modern observatory has made it possible in a striking sense for the layman to put Emerson's advice into play and to hitch "his wagon to a star."

TO-DAY'S MOTORING HINTFABRIC UNIVERSAL JOINTS

The car will run for thousands of miles before the need arises for renewing the fabric in the universal joints. In course of time wear becomes noticeable and it is then that a repair should be effected to what is a vital part of the transmission system.

Many owner-drivers are keen to do all they can themselves, but it is not advisable for them to tackle this job. Fitting a piece of leather or ordinary fabric may appear to be all that is needed, but this is not so in practice.

It is essential that specially prepared fabric be used. Special discs are made for the purpose, these being formed of a number of layers of patent fabric arranged with the threads at angles. A direct pull is provided between each pair of bolt holes. Even these special discs require careful fitting, so it is better to entrust the work to a skilled mechanic.

neutralisation of the islands. In granting the Philippines independence, the United States is attempting to do two things: do justice to the Filipino people, and rid itself of a potentially embarrassing entanglement. It may therefore be that some such programme as has been suggested might produce the results desired in a better way than is now proposed. Be that as it may, it would certainly be an ironic stroke of fate if the Philippines question should involve the United States in trouble after it had formally started to withdraw.

SIX PENNY FLIGHT TO PARIS

By ROBERT KRONFELD

Robert Kronfeld is Austrian gliding expert, who a few days ago made a remarkable flight from Croydon to Paris in his tiny single-seater gliding plane, which is provided with a 6-h.p. motorcycle engine, and is capable of a speed of 60 m.p.h. The flight cost him less than 6s. for fuel. Herr Kronfeld, it will be remembered, in 1931 won the £1,000 prize offered by The Daily Mail for the first gliding flight across the Channel and back. In this article he discusses the developments to be expected in aviation from the new form of flight.

had a contrary wind I should have got over just the same. With my machine I can fly extremely low, and can therefore seek an altitude where wind velocity does not hinder me.

My machine takes off in 80 yards, just like the majority of planes, but, instead of having to continue running in a straight line after rising, I can turn within the limits of my take-off field and gradually rise in a spiral, practically like an autogiro.

A field of 200 yards in length is quite sufficient for me to take to the air. I can land at 18 miles per hour, and therefore I need not fear a crash. Should I have to land on rough ground I simply sit down.

Now imagine what a wonderful sporting achievement it would be if we could have hundreds of gliding clubs in England, and tens of thousands of young men and women gliders taking off from almost any flat field or piece of common ground; able to take an evening gliding flight for 30 or 40 miles out into the country and back, or go to Scotland for a week-end from Surrey.

When I landed in Paris my petrol tank was barely half empty. I could have continued my journey for about another 230 miles, which would have taken me to near Geneva.

And to think that because I thought I needed all that petrol I almost overloaded myself and for the first time took a large parachute with me!

Both the British and the French Air Ministries, it should be pointed out, are eager to help this new movement in cheap flying, and it is thanks to both of them that I was able to obtain the necessary permits without difficulty.

There are heaps of people who want to fly but who cannot do so because of the cost. They must have a cheap machine on which they can rely.

In trying to create this cheap plane small wing loading has been made a feature, as experience has proved that machines with a light weight per square foot are extremely safe.

With the machine with which I crossed over yesterday—a B.A.C. Drone—all kinds of risky things can be done which could not be attempted with an ordinary plane. There is no danger of stalling.

A flight of 800 to 1,000 miles would be possible with this same machine equipped with a bigger tank.

I may point out that the B.A.C. Drone is fitted with a 600 c.c. Douglas engine developed out of a standard motor-cycle. It is practically the same as that of the

The glider which I have just delivered cost $275. The French glider company, however, with the subsidies which are given for such craft by the French Air Ministry, hope to be able to deliver to their clients a glider built in series at something like $150 to $180.

That is the proper spirit. There is no doubt that we are now in the Flying Age. For the spirit and knowledge of flying to be spread everywhere among our youth we want flying gliders to be available for them as cheaply as a runabout car, and, soon, perhaps, almost as cheaply as a motor-cycle.

KING'S ABSENCE FROM ASCOT

MANY FOREIGN COMPETITORS

JUBILEE MEETING TO-DAY

London, June 17. There is great disappointment owing to the unavoidable absence of the King from Jubilee Ascot, which begins to-morrow. H. M. the Queen will, however, drive to the course every day accompanied by the Prince of Wales.

This will be only the second Ascot that the King has missed since 1909. The course is in perfect condition but the question is, will the present foul weather continue and spoil the gaiety of the women's dresses?

The unbeaten French colt, Brantome is competing in the Gold Cup.

The famous American horse, Twenty Grand, winner of the Kentucky of 1931, is competing in the Queen Anne Stakes.

Other famous French horses are to compete at the meeting, and there is little hope of a Royal victory since the King's two fillies, Feola and Parity, entered in the Queen Mary's Stakes are hardly good enough.

To-morrow's feature will be the appearance of the Agen Khan's Bahram, fresh from his Epsom triumph who is considered a certainty for the St. James's Palace Stakes.

There is a record number of entries, namely three hundred, whose total value is estimated at half a million sterling.

The stakes money exceed £70,000.—Reuter's Special.

A report from the League Management Committee suggesting that the Association should inform the secretaries of the various clubs to the effect that non-fulfilment of League fixtures would be regarded as a serious breach of the Association's rules, was read and approved by the Council.

With regard to the application of the Chung Wah Football Club for affiliation to the Association, it was pointed out that the acceptance of this application, as it stood, would give rise to a lot of confusion as there is already a club affiliated to the Association with that name.

The Hon. Secretary was asked to write to the secretary of the new club informing him of the position, and to see what could be done regarding the name.

It was agreed that the Annual General Meeting of the Association be held on Monday, July 15.

The next Council meeting will be held on July 2.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, June 17.

The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: Stocks to-day were irregular. Silver and copper issues ended, due to lower world prices and the situation regarding investment. Utility shares showed hopes of some modification of the Wheel-Industry Utility Holding Company Bill. Bonds were upward led by railroad issues. Stocks on the Curb were irregularly higher. Utility issues were strong.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: Stocks were moderately easy as traders are standing aside. Mill activity is estimated at 38.3 percent of capacity, compared with 39.0 percent the previous week.

New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:

Cotton: The market is featureless, awaiting some action by Washington. Demand for "spot" cotton is poor and mill curtailment continues.

Wheat: There was some covering by short interests and rains in the South-West. Prices are possibly moderately higher on the oversold condition of the market. The visible supply of wheat shows a decrease of 2,207,000 bushels.

Corn: There is a further delay in planting and there are rains in the Central Belt, which are not wanted. The visible supply of corn has decreased by 1,000,000 bushels.

Rubber: There are threats of a minor strike in Akron. The market is very steady.

Sugar: The market is stagnant and featureless.

HONGKONG LUXURIES

MORE CIGARETTES BUT LESS LIQUOR

Although Hongkong is feeling the pinch of depression, it can still afford certain luxuries.

Last year the public paid $30,544 in excess of the estimated revenue of $676,000 for import duty on Motor Spirit, while the estimate of $15,000 for licences for motor vehicles was exceeded by $13,333.

In his Annual Reports for 1934, the Colonial Treasurer states that the excess over the estimates was caused through the importation into the Colony of more foreign motor vehicles.

Increased consumption of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco was responsible for an excess revenue of $163,834 over the estimate of $2,000,000.

But although the Hongkong public used more motor cars, drove increased mileage, and smoked more cigars and cigarettes, it drank less liquor. The actual revenue from liquor duties fell $30,828 short of the estimated revenue of one million dollars. This decrease was reflected in the decreased revenue for liquor licences, a decrease attributed by the Colonial Treasurer to the trade depression.

The Other Side

A sidelight on the depression that exists in Hongkong is given in the Annual Report on the Finances of the Colony for 1934, issued by the Hon. Mr. E. Taylor, Colonial Treasurer, last week.

CALLES FLEES

BLOODLESS REVOLT IN MEXICO

Mexico City, June 17. General Calles has assembled all loyal troops at the capital, which is now virtually under martial law.

Meanwhile the veteran President, whose break with General Calles is one of the sensations of Mexico's turbulent history, is rushing his plans for the organisation of a Labour Government to replace the semi-dictatorial Cabinet of yesterday.

It seems apparent now that President Calles has secured a bloodless victory over Calles, who is reported to have left Overnava Estates for the hacienda of a friend in the state of Morelos.

It is rumoured that Calles is planning to leave Mexico shortly.

The significance of his dramatic move for apparent leadership of Mexico is at the moment obscure. Labour unions and student revolutionaries are supporting President Calles, who is hailed as the victor.

A throng of 10,000 Catholic victims of the religious persecution of the Central Belt, which are not wanted. The visible supply of corn has decreased by 1,000,000 bushels.

Officials insist that the country is calm, and decry reports of impending violence. Nevertheless, precautions are being rushed to prevent the possibility of a surprise forceful opposition move.—United Press.

Calles Interviewed

Mexico City, June 17.

In a public statement issued shortly after his departure for Morelos, General Calles said that he did not desire to interfere in public affairs.

He added that he was departing in order to end the situation created by his statement of criticism of Labour and political conditions, which had resulted in the break with President Cardenas.

His statement is seen as a peace gesture, and indicates his probable complete retirement from politics.

His recent statement, he said, had been issued at the request of a group of Senators, who had asked him for his opinion regarding different political and social matters.

"Unfortunately," said Calles, "my statements may have served to create the belief that I aspire to intervene in public affairs. This I have no desire to do."

General Calles added that he was departing for the province of Sinaloa by aeroplane to-morrow.—United Press.

THE FAR EAST

CAUTIOUS STATEMENT IN COMMONS

London, June 17.

The Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, in the course of a statement to the House of Commons on the situation in China, said that for various reasons the effects on China of the World Economic Depression were delayed.

For some months past the economic situation had been one of undoubted difficulty and the position had been further complicated by the recent rise in the price of silver.

As the House was aware the Government were closely and sympathetically following developments and they had now arranged that Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, the Chief Economic Adviser to the British Government, should proceed to China at an early date in order that he may be in a position to advise them on the situation.

Internal Politics

Despite the financial crisis the political situation during the recent months had not been unfavourable. There were signs of steady progress towards order and stability and signs that the Central Government's campaign against the Communists was contributing towards the extension of this authority and influence.

North China

In North China there had been disquieting developments during the past two weeks. Reports were contradictory in certain details and the situation liable to rapid change.

It appeared that the Japanese Military Authorities had made representations regarding persons and organisations, alleged to be hostile to them in the demilitarised zone fixed by the terms of the Armistice of Tangku.

The local Chinese authorities took measures to meet these representations.

Certain points remain outstanding still and appear to be the subject of a local discussion.

"With regard to the most recent developments in North China I have been in consultation with the British representatives in Tokyo and Nanking, and through them with both the Chinese and Japanese Governments. These communications are still continuing."

Sir Samuel concluded:

"With regard to the most recent developments in North China I have been in consultation with the British representatives in Tokyo and Nanking, and through them with both the Chinese and Japanese Governments. These communications are still continuing."

Ann Arbor, June 17.

Addressing students of Michigan University the Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, referred to the still further deterioration of the international situation.

He did not think that a new World War was inevitable, nor did he believe that a major war abroad would involve the United States. Nevertheless America could not in the long run avoid its disastrous results.

America had not broken any of the basic principles of democracy despite the rise of foreign nations with new political systems bent on remoulding civilisation.

Mr. Cordell Hull added that any nation that did not co-operate in the control of armaments was retarding the progress of the world and should be branded.—Reuter.

SECOND DAY'S PLAY IN BRITISH AMATEUR GOLF

AMERICAN HOLDER WINS THROUGH

Lawson Little Plays Like A Champion

By Vagrant, at St. Annes

London, May 22.
Lawson Little, U.S.A., the holder, ran into his best form here yesterday in beating Eric Martin Smith, who won the title in 1931. Much of his delicacy round the greens had returned to him, and the further the game went the longer he got. At the 14th, 450yds., he was twelve feet from the flag with No. 5 iron. Martin Smith proved a worthy foeman, and it was not until the turn that Little was able to shake him off.

Little started in typical style, putting a delicate little chip stroke dead to get a winning three. He went further ahead at the 3rd, where Martin Smith pulled his drive into a far away bunker. He recovered well, but Little ran his approach putt up stone dead—a beautifully struck putt—and, as we waited at the 4th, the truth struck home forcibly that Little was playing the best golf he has done over here this year.

Both missed short putts on the 4th green; Smith saved the 5th with an eight-foot putt after chipping up from the right; he holed another longish one on the next green, and then raised British hopes by winning the 7th, where Little pulled his drive against a mound, topped his second from an awkward stance, but topped it far enough to get home easily with his third, only to miss a four-foot return putt.

LITTLE OUT IN 36

Little at once got his two-hole lead again, holing from six feet after both had been over with their seconds, whilst Martin Smith failed from less. Little was out in 3, 4, 4, 5, 3, 4, 6, 4, 3—36, and his opponent in two shots more. Starting for home, Little helped himself to another hole, rolling in a 12-foot putt for 3 at the 10th. Martin Smith got the better of the Adventurous 11th, winning it in 5 to 6.

Both pulled their drives, Martin Smith just short of a nursery of childlike saplings. Little into it. Martin Smith played a remarkable recovery to finish up high on the left, and Little's shot struck a branch and finished short in the rough. Even so, he was left with a six-foot putt to save the hole, but failed. But that was Martin Smith's last throw, for Little hit one of his very best iron shots to win the 12th in 3, and got a lucky four at the 13th, where pulled short of the ditch for which it was bound. Martin Smith had pushed his out into a bunker, but followed this with a recovery drawing well-earned applause, and then put a little chip three feet from the hole.

Then Little had an enormous drive to the 14th, put his second 12 feet from the pin, and holed the putt for 3 to become dormie. Another grand second home gave him four that was nearly a three, and victory. His figures in were : 3, 6, 3, 4, 4, 4. If he maintains yesterday's standard, his elimination is going to require some brilliant play. His metamorphosis in one night is remarkable. He has replaced the mediocrities of Monday with golf of the highest standard.

A POOR MATCH

After the alarms and excursions of Monday it would have required a lot to surprise us yesterday, and nothing of the sort was forthcoming. Chief interest of the morning was centred on the meeting of Cyril Tolley and William Tulloch, a Scottish international who has twice reached the semi-final round in this event. It proved extremely poor fare for the most part, neither player touching his accustomed form.

Tulloch started with the disconcerting experience of missing from under two feet for the half, but he squared at the next by holing a six-yarder.

South Africans Made To Follow On

WICKETS FALL FAST IN TRENT BRIDGE CRICKET TEST

London, June 17.
After the heavy rain of yesterday afternoon, the wicket was drying rapidly under the influence of sunshine and wind. As might be expected under such circumstances, R. E. S. Wyatt, the English captain, decided to declare with Saturday's total of 384 for seven wickets and let the South Africans make what they could of it.

The weather was fine and sunny when the South Africans commenced their innings before a crowd of 3,000 spectators. The pace of the wicket was easy.

After Bowes, Nichols, Verity and Robins had spells with the ball, the attack was eventually in the hands of Robins and Nichols. The latter was lifting the ball occasionally.

The South African opening batsmen, J. J. Siedle and B. Mitchell, were on the defensive until Siedle drove Robins past cover to the boundary ropes for the first boundary hit of the innings.

Scoring was exceptionally slow, Siedle taking 51 minutes to get into double figures.

Mitchell hit a couple of boundaries and was then bowled by Nichols who sent down a ball which came up very fast off the pitch. He had been batting for 55 minutes for his 25 runs.

The score-board showed 42 runs when Mitchell left.

Siedle was joined by E. A. Rowan, one of the most accomplished batsmen in the touring side. The newcomer settled down quickly and hit a four to the on-boundary, to hold the half century in 68 minutes.

At lunch time, Siedle and Rowan were still together. They had meanwhile taken the score to 98 for one wicket.

SIEDE'S FINE SHOTS

Siedle was hitting some fine shots to the leg side, especially off Verity, the Yorkshire bowler. He had 47 to his credit and Rowan 26.

The crowd had swelled to 6,000 when the game was resumed after lunch. During the interval, there was a shower.

Without any addition to the score, Rowan was dismissed. He was caught behind the stumps by the wicket-keeper, Ames, who was standing up to the bowling of Robins. He was attempting a late cut when he snicked the ball into Ames' gloves.

A. D. Nourse, of whom great things were expected, turned out to be a disappointment. He stayed long enough to make only four runs. He crashed Robins to the off boundary, to send up the 100 in 162 minutes.

He then gave a "dolly" catch to Hammond, fielding second slip, off Verity shortly afterwards. The ball cocked up suddenly.

Siedle, who had been batting very patiently all the while, was the next man to return to the pavilion. With his score at 59 he was bowled by the Yorkshire left-hander. He had contributed almost half his side's score of 120 for four wickets.

He reached his 50 with a leg boundary off Verity after being at the wicket for 160 minutes. He lost his wicket through attempting to make a big hit to leg. His innings was faultless, and included in his 59 were six boundary strokes. Altogether he batted for 176 minutes.

H. B. Cameron, the South African wicket-keeper, joined his captain, who at that stage was not out with five runs. Cameron at once showed that he was in an aggressive mood. Although Wade had been at the wicket for some little time, Cameron quickly overhauled him.

CAMERON AGGRESSIVE

When the score had been taken to 146 for four wickets, Cameron had 17 while Wade could only claim ten.

Three fours in an over by Cameron off Robins helped the South Africans to hold the 150, which was reached after 220 minutes' play.

At 29, Cameron gave a difficult chance to Mitchell-Innes in the slips off Bowes. The ball kept low and was not accepted by the Oxford player.

Misfortune befell the South Africans when Wade mistimed a shot and was caught by Nichols in the slips off Verity.

The South African captain had contributed only 18, but he had seen the score taken from 103 to 174 for five wickets. He was at the crease for 104 minutes.

Shortly afterwards, Cameron got his 50.

Tea was then taken, Cameron having exactly 50 and K. G. Viljoen four.

The score was 100 for five wickets. The old saying that interval was borne out after tea.

When play resumed, Cameron could only add two runs to his score. He was bowled by Nichols.

The score-board read 198 for six. Cameron played on after being at the wicket for 116 minutes, during which time he hit eight fours, the feature of his innings being fine drives on the leg side.

Vincent was out from the second ball he received, and with the score at 25, for 8, Viljoen had his off stump removed by one of Nichols' expressives. Langston was unable to score and Crisp was caught at cover by Robins, Nichols again being the lucky bowler. The innings closed for 230.

Following on Siedle was caught by Verity at short square-leg off Nichols for two runs, in the third over of the innings. Mitchell and Rowan then played out time.

& CARLETON KENDRAKE

CHAPTER XLVII

Sergeant Mahoney stopped the car in front of the apartment house. "I have been thinking," he said, "about Gentry. You say that he tried a key to apartment 309 and it wouldn't work?"

"That's right."

"Then, until he got to apartment 309 he must have thought the key was going to work."

"Yes. Why?"

"In that event," he said, "he must have used the key to get into the apartment house. In other words, he must have opened the outer door with that key."

She stared at him, her forehead showing lines of bewilderment.

"In other words," Mahoney said, "someone gave Gentry a key to apartment 309. That someone had another apartment in the house and must have given Gentry the key to that apartment instead of apartment 309. Both keys would open the door of the apartment house itself. The peculiar knocks were merely a signal so the conspirators couldn't be surprised by anyone with a pass-key."

Millicent recognized the logic of his remarks. "Good heavens, yes! And perhaps that other apartment is where..."

"Exactly," he interrupted. "Now that apartment must be on the third floor. Norman was carried from apartment 309. He would never have left it voluntarily. They would hardly have taken him up or downstairs."

Sergeant Mahoney stepped from the car, rang the bell of the apartment marked, "MANAGER." At the third ring a speaking tube whistled. A woman's voice said, "If this is a tenant who's forgotten his key, I'll open the door. If it's someone who wants an apartment, come back at a decent hour."

"It's the police," Sergeant Mahoney said. "Open the door and meet us in the corridor with a pass-key."

A moment later the door buzzed open. Sergeant Mahoney pushed his way into the apartment house. Millicent saw a big, blond woman with a white, frightened face, hugging a kimono about herself.

Sergeant Mahoney showed her his badge. "Give me a pass-key," he said.

She handed him the pass-key. Sergeant Mahoney escorted Millicent to the elevator, slid back the door of the cage, pressed the button for the third floor.

"When you get to that floor," he said, "get out and run up and down the corridor, screaming, 'Norman, where are you?' After that, no matter what happens, act naturally—that is, be frightened. Don't let on that you know the police have the place surrounded. For your information, I have men placed where they can come to your rescue whenever I give the signal, but I don't want to do that again. Something struck her in the side with numbing force. She heard a terrific roar, for Dick Gentry grew suddenly limp, Sergeant Mahoney's voice, sounding deadly ominous, said, "Make a move and you'll get the same dose. Stick 'em up!"

Millicent broke free as Dick Gentry collapsed to the floor. She saw Sergeant Mahoney cutting at Norman's bonds with a snap knife, saw the strange man with his hands high above his head. *

Millicent ran to Norman, screaming, "Are you hurt?" He grimed at her and said, "No. Why didn't you run when I warned you? Gentry was holding a gun on me. She said he'd shoot if I didn't lie perfectly still. I knew what they wanted. They wanted to get you in here. When I shouted I dove forward to dodge the bullet. A woman was with him. She ran. I couldn't see her clearly."

He straightened, rubbing his wrists. Sergeant Mahoney stepped over to Dick Gentry, slowly shook his head. "I'm sorry, boys," he said. "I had to look. I'd have got the girl."

Millicent looked up then and saw that grim, silent figures had filed into the room, figures who moved with swift efficiency, jerking down the hands of the man who had lured her into the apartment, snapping handcuffs around his wrists.

"What happened, Norman?" she asked.

Sergeant Mahoney sat down beside Norman Happ. "It's important," he said, "for us to get everything you know and get it fast. Give us the bare facts and give them quickly."

"I went to 309," Norman Happ said. "I knocked. No one answered. I started toward the elevator. This man," nodding his head toward the handcuffed prisoner, "stepped into the hallway. He asked me if I was a friend of Phyllis Faulconer. He said she had instructed him to let her friend into the apartment. It was a trap. I fell for it and said, 'Yes.' He let me into the apartment, struck at me with a blackjack. I was stunned but managed to tackle him."

"Dick Gentry came in. We fought all over the apartment but they got me finally. They dragged me down to this place and have held me prisoner. I think this man is a hired thug. That's all I know."

"And, by God!" said the handcuffed man, "that's all you'll ever find out. You've killed Gentry. You've got nothing on me. I thought the man was a burglar."

Through an open door which led to the kitchenette she saw Dick Gentry, an automatic in his hand, his lips twisted into an evil leer, taking deliberate aim at Norman Happ's struggling figure.

Millicent screamed, lunged forward. The gun roared. She heard the impact of a bullet striking something solid as, with savagery which surprised her, she flung herself upon Dick Gentry and realized she was holding his wrist, struggling with him for the automatic.

"You little hell-devil!" he exclaimed. "Take that!" His teeth sank into his hand. He kicked at her. The gun roared

CINEMA NEWSNOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Every cinema-goer will certainly thrill to the screen story of carefree youth which will be seen by Thursday at the Queen's Theatre. "Bachelor of Arts" is the title of this outstanding Fox production—yes, it is adapted from the famous John Erskine novel of the same title and is the most honest and "doubtless" film of college life ever screened. Perhaps its greatest quality is its sense of humour. That, of course, stems directly from its author, the man who wrote "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" and "Galahad" and who is even more famed as a humorist than he is as a college professor at Columbia. But the same gay and authentically lively note has been struck in direction, playing and production generally. Tom Brown and Anita Louise are seen in the two most important roles—the young campus sweethearts who meet the problems of an adult world in an adult way and not by shouting "rah-rah-rah!" There is an exceptionally fine supporting cast. Henry B. Walthall has an important role and, as his wife, Mae Marsh contributed a beautiful performance—her first opposite Walthall since their supreme success in "Birth of a Nation" 20 years ago. In "Bachelor of Arts" the campus is peopled by such engaging young people as Arline Judge, Frank Albertson, John Arledge and Frank Melton. No wonder life moves quickly at this film university. An then, to top the laughs, Stepin Fetchit appears as a slow-motion bellhop in a fraternitiy house.

The Great Hotel Murder

Screen players are much younger and better looking to-day than they were ten years ago. Many of the people whose voices are admired for their clearness and diction to-day would have failed to pass the test a few years ago. This is the opinion of Ernest Palmer, A.S.C., one of Fox Film's ace camera men. Mr. Palmer photographed "The Great Hotel Murder," Fox Film's new mystery comedy which comes on Wednesday to the King's Theatre. Lowd is co-featured with Victor MacLaglen in the screen version of Starrett's popular Red Book mystery yarn, "Recipe For Murder." They portray two rival clowns in this John Stone production, which Eugene Forde directed. In the supporting cast are Rosemary Ames, Mary Carlisle, Henry O'Neill, C. Henry Gordon, William Jarmy, Charles C. Wilson, John Wray, and others.

"Crime Doctor"

A detective photoplay hailed as a distinct departure from crime films of the past is the achievement comprised in "The Crime Doctor" showing at the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday. Offering a most novel treatment of the subject—the strange emotional impulses which cause a scientific murder—this picture takes the audience into its confidence from the beginning. Intense suspense is built up in this unusual manner, particularly when suspicion is cunningly centred upon an innocent man who seems destined to pay the supreme penalty. Affording another outstanding characterization to Otto Kruger, Kruger's co-featured with Karen Morley and Nils Asther in the most amazing case of a great manhunter's misuse of his ability. Judith Wood and William Fraley have important roles. Kruger plays the crime investigator of the story. Miss Morley, as her wife, furnishes the motive for the amazing "perfect crime" of the picture. Dealing with the psychological causes of crime, the film stresses the point that deep within every person lies an instinct to kill which may be loosed under certain circumstances.

Desirable?

A new and dazzling Jean Muir entranced audiences at the Alhambra Theatre, Kowloon, by her brilliant performance in the Warner Bros. production, "Desirable," which was shown on the local screen for the first time yesterday. This rising new star was given the fine opportunity of her career in this dramatic story, which was written especially for her by the famous magazine writer, Mary McCall, Jr. Miss Muir has the role of a young and unscrupulous girl who has been secluded from childhood in a boarding school by her brilliant actress mother, who fears that public knowledge that she has a grown daughter will dim her own popularity. Thrust suddenly into the giddy whirl of New York's social elite, she sends an electrical shock up and down the spines of custom-bound conventional people by her outspoken truth and naturalness. George Brent gives the most convincing performance as the man-about-town, once in love with the mother, but who turns to the daughter because of her simple charm, and lack of affection. Brent seems more spontaneous, more magnetic and compelling. He seems to have overcome a seemingly studied self-representation and gives his real self to the character role. Verro Teasdale is quite as dazzling as Miss Muir in the actress' mother, temperamental jealous of her own daughter, to the extent of being willing to ruin her life to further her own career. Miss Teasdale gives a fiery portrayal of the maddened actress who thrusts a knife into her daughter's heart, while Miss Muir rises to the highly emotional and cataclysmic scenes with all the artistry of a seasoned trouper. The entire cast is a talented one and includes John Halliday, always a finished actor, who plays the role of a theatrical angel and the lover of Miss Teasdale; Charles Starrett, as the son of a blue-blooded, aristocratic family, whose engagement to the boarding school girl is broken, to the satisfaction of his thoroughly shocked mother; Pauline True, John Wheeler, Barbara Leonard and Virginia Hamond.

The Defense Rests

Jack Holt, hero of eighty-six virile screen adventure dramas, dons the toga of the barrister for the first time in his long and notable career to present the leading character of the Columbia drama, "The Defense Rests," now playing at the Queen's Theatre. The new film is from an original story and screen play by Jo Swerling and was directed by Lambert Hillyer. Supporting the star in the leading feminine role is Jean Arthur, who scored decisively in the recent "Whirlpool" opposite Jack Holt and in "Most Precious Thing in Life" with Donald Cook. The remainder of the cast includes Shirley Grey, Nat Pendleton, Raymond Walburn, Hugh Fadden, Donald Meek and Raymond Hatton. The story is a powerful indictment of the ruthless, sensational "moultpiece" popularized by the Bill Falcons and the Earl Rogers. The "Matt Mitchell" of the "Defense Rests" is a brilliant, notorious criminal lawyer who will defend any one—at a price. His publicity-seeking tactics win him headlines which he cynically terms, "advertising which money can't buy—and which the bar association can't bar." But, oddly enough, he is a law school graduate in the person of Jean Arthur comes in his life at the height of his career. Her enthusiasm and idealism concerning the profession provide a sharp contrast to Holt's cynical materialism. They share arguments with romance, and pave the way for a thrilling denouement.

The Mighty Barnum

"The Mighty Barnum," which 20th Century brings to the King's Theatre, is in the nature of a Centennial Celebration offering. For it was exactly one hundred years ago that P. T. Barnum, played by Wallace Beery, left his grocery store on New York City's Bowery, and launched his career as the world's greatest showman by exhibiting "Joice Heth, an aged negro claimed to be 160 years old and to have nursed George Washington in his infancy. Whether Joice was actually a 160-year-old, but the newspapers of the day devoted a flattering amount of editorial space to the question of her authenticity and even the clergy found her worthy of mention. General Tom Thumb, the world's smallest man, the "Cardiff Giant," the "Woolly Horse," the "Mermaid," the two-headed calf and all the rest of the freaks with which

Solution to Previous

By W. E. McKenney

Here's one of the most interesting squeeze plays that I have seen for quite a while. I might term it some kind of a double backward squeeze.

The usual procedure in this type of play is for the opponent to find himself squeezed because he has to discard or play ahead of the third hand. But here's a double squeeze where first one opponent and then the other is forced to discard while playing as fourth hand to the squeeze trick.

To get the full benefit of the hand, I suggest that you lay the cards out on the table and follow it play for play.

The hand was sent to me by an old tournament friend, Joe Smith of Newark, O., well known to bridge players who used to attend the Tri-State tournament at Uniontown, which was conducted by Mr. Smith each year. As Joe states in his letter, he likes to bid grand slams and "nothing succeeds like success."

East's bid of three diamonds, of course, was for the sole purpose of trying to take a non-vulnerable sacrifice.

The Play.

In response to his partner's diamond bid, West's opening lead was the five of diamonds, which was won in dummy with the ace. Now, even though the king of spades can be located, the hand looks almost impossible, but here's the procedure of play...

Declarer started right in to cash all his trumps. This left him with the ace-queen and deuce of spades, and the three and two of clubs. The dummy was left with the jack of spades, king-jack of diamonds, and the ace-jack of clubs. West retained the nine, eight, and seven of spades and the king-ten and six of spades and the queen-ten of diamonds.

Here's where this interesting double squeeze play develops. The three of clubs is led by South; West plays the queen and the trick is won in dummy with the ace. East, who is fourth hand, finds that he is squeezed. He cannot let go of a diamond, due to dummy's king-jack, so he releases the six of spades.

This squeeze is then followed by the play of the king of diamonds from dummy. East plays the ten, the declarer discards the deuce of clubs and West is squeezed.

The king of clubs must be held, due to dummy's jack, so the seven of spades must be discarded. Now all the declarer has to do is to lead the jack of spades and, if East doesn't cover, he plays the queen and wins the last two tricks with the ace and deuce of spades.

COMPANY MEETING

WALLACE HARPER AND COMPANY

Increased activity in road-building in South China pointing to a bright future there for the automobile trade was mentioned by the Chairman, Mr. Wallace Harper, at the annual meeting of Wallace Harper & Co., Ltd., held on Friday.

The Chairman remarked that the profits amounted to $100,673.47 which, although gratifying, was less than was anticipated from the sales, at the beginning of the year.

The Chairman said: The gross profit on trading for the year amounted to $100,673.47 and after charging Administration Expenses, Depreciation, etc., the net profit is $80,821.22, which amount has been placed to the credit of Profit & Loss A/c reducing the debit balance of $76,930, carried forward from last year, to $55,508.78, which we are carrying forward to new account.

While I feel no small degree of disappointment that the final results for the year have not been as gratifying as indications in the earlier part gave reason to expect, yet I am sure you will agree that to have shown the profit we have on the year's working is no inconsiderable achievement in the face of difficulties with which business in general has had to contend.

Exchange Effects

At the risk of bringing up a subject already much discussed, I must point out to you that exchange has had a serious effect on the showing for the year. For example, the shrinkage in the value of our stocks as a result of much higher exchange rates has made a very appreciable difference to the profit for the period under review.

Furthermore, shareholders will appreciate that our profit is based on a percentage of retail prices, and with present high exchange rates our prices are about half those of a year or so ago. Hence our profit, expressed in terms of local dollars, is likewise halved, although the percentage remains the same. Against this our overhead, which is in local currency and unaffected by exchange fluctuations, remains more or less constant.

The year, however, has not been without its bright side in that it has seen the acquisition of added territory and the re-opening of a Canton branch office, as a result of which we can confidently look forward to a considerably greater and steadily increasing volume of profitable business.

Bright Future

Your company has erected, during the year, in a locality better suited to our business, more spacious and modern premises, the cost of which, under the schedule of depreciation adopted, will be entirely written off in less than five years.

The future outlook of the automobile business in China can well be judged by the rapid strides being made in road construction in the interior. Many of you will doubtless be surprised to learn that the first journey ever made by motor car between Shanghai and Canton was recently accomplished by Chinese gentleman resident in Shanghai. It is particularly interesting to note that the trip was made in an 8 h.p. Ford the Type more popularly known as the "Baby Ford" and manufactured by the Ford Motor Co. of England, Ltd., Dagenham, Essex. There is much road-building activity in the South China territory which we cover and of course more roads mean more cars and trucks.

And now, Gentlemen, I beg to propose the adoption of the Annual Report and Statement of Accounts as submitted by your Directors and if someone will kindly second my proposal I shall then be glad to answer any questions you may wish to raise. The report and accounts were adopted.

The report stated:

In accordance with Article No. 76 of the Company's Articles of Association Messrs. D. L. Ballantyne, Colbourne Little, L. Jack and J. F. Shea retire from the Board. Mr. Shea now residing in Canton does not seek re-election but Messrs. Ballantyne, Little and Jack being eligible offer themselves for re-election.

PRIEST RELEASED

BANDIT CAPTIVE GAINS HIS FREEDOM

New York, June 17. The head office in New York of the Maryknoll Mission of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America has received advice from China that the Rev. Father Henry Bush, M.M., who was captured by bandits on the Kiangsi-Kwangtung frontier in April, has been released.

The Rev. Fr. Bush was en route to his station at Shachkin when he was captured last April. His intention was to stay with some friends there.

The incident was reported to the Bishop at Meishien, and nothing further was heard for some days.

Reports from Meishien, which report the release of Father Bush, are meagre, and do not state whether any ransom was demanded or paid.

Approximately 25 American Catholic priests are stationed in different parts of the district affected, and this is the first incident of its nature for some years. However, about twelve months ago, a Catholic priest had a narrow escape from capture from bandits in the town in which Fr. Bush was captured. The priest was visiting friends and was spending the night at their house when it was raided. The wife of the host was shot and the host himself kidnapped, but the priest escaped by climbing over the wall.

Father Bush is a native of Medford, Mass. He came to China about two years ago and has been stationed in the Shachkin district since then.—United Press.

Reuter adds that Father Bush was rescued by Chinese troops under the command of Huang Pi on the border of Kiangsi and Kwangtung.

Father Bush is now proceeding with an escort of soldiers to Shihchung.

OIL MONOPOLY

CONDITIONS THAT FORCED OUT FOREIGN CONCERN

London, June 17.

Replying to Captain Peter Macdonald (C), (Isle of Wight), the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, said that no reply had been received from Japan to the British protest against the establishment of the Oil Monopoly in Manchukuo.

Meanwhile the monopoly had come into force under such circumstances that the British and American Oil Companies had decided that they had no alternative but to withdraw from the market.

He understood that the conditions of their withdrawal would be the subject of discussions between the Companies and the Manchukuo Authorities.

The British Government's view of the Monopoly and the responsibility of the Japanese Government had been sufficiently indicated in the note of April 29.—Reuter.

by Messrs. Percy Smith, Seth and Fleming.

In connection with the election of Auditors, Mr. Wm. Kalley, a Member of the Company, has signified his intention of proposing the following resolution at the Meeting.

"That Messrs. T. A. Martin & Co. be appointed Auditors of the Company for the coming year at a fee of $500.00."

Directors elected for the ensuing year were Messrs. A. Colbourne Little and L. Jack, Messrs. T. A. Martin & Co. were elected auditors.

The hearing of the case was then adjourned until 2.30 p.m. on June 28.

TRADE MARK CASE

ALLEGED FALSE DESCRIPTION ON MILK TINS

The Tung Sang firm, No. 222 Des Voeux Road, West, were defendants in two summonses before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, for possession for sale or purposes of sale of condensed milk to which a false trade description had been applied, calculated to deceive, and for having sold, exposed or offered for sale tins of condensed milk on which labels or wrappings bearing the words, "This is skinned milk. Children under one year of age should not be fed on it," had not been applied in English and Chinese, on May 22 and 23.

The complainant was Young Chuan, a broker in the employ of the Holland China Trading Company, whose labels had been infringed.

Mr. H. C. Lee appeared for the complainant, and Mr. H. A. de B. Boteling appeared for the defendant firm, which was represented in court by Lam Wing, assistant manager and partner.

Prosecution's Case

The case for the prosecution, as outlined by Mr. Lee, was that the defendant was charged with selling a brand of condensed milk known as the "Strong Man" brand, with labels similar to the labels on the tins belonging to the Holland China Trading Company. The complainant had visited the Tung Sang firm on May 22, and purchased four tins of milk, which he discovered to be forged because they were smaller than the genuine tins. The complainant firm desired to bring the prosecution, because they felt it was their duty as the defendants were selling milk which was in fact not their property and so under-cutting their business, and secondly because the tins did not bear the labels as prescribed under the Food and Drugs Ordinance. As a result a warrant was taken out on May 23, and the Tung Sang premises were searched, and 17 tins of the same milk seized.

Evidence was then given by Young Chuan, the complainant, who stated that the Holland China Trading Company were the only agents for the "Strong Man" brand of condensed milk, which was priced at $8 per case of 48 tins wholesale, and 20 cents for a tin retail. His firm had not sold the genuine milk or any brand of milk to the defendant firm, but ten cases had been sold to a man named Cheong Man between March and April. The labels on the forged tins were similar to the labels on the genuine tins, but the genuine tins were bigger. The assistant manager of the defendant firm had then informed him that he had bought the milk from a broker, but he did not hear him mention the broker's name nor did he give his address.

Defendant's Evidence

After Sergeant Guild had testified to the seizure, Lam Wing, assistant manager of the defendant firm, went into the witness box, and said that he had bought the tins from a broker named Cheong Man, who had offered to sell him good milk belonging to the Holland China Trading Company, and had quoted him prices for the milk. He had bought one case of 48 tins for $8 and a dozen small tins for $1 from Cheong Man, and was given a receipt. He thought the tins were genuine and sold by the Holland China Trading Company, and placed another order for three dozen more.

He did not do business in skimmed milk. At the time of the seizure he had given the Sergeant and the complainant all the help required, and had immediately sent his folks to look for Cheong Man, whom he later took with him to the West Point Police Station.

In reply to Mr. Lee, witness said he did not know that Cheong Man was a broker in condensed milk for any firm. He had believed Cheong Man when he stated the milk was genuine, and had not asked him whether he was the authorised agent for the Holland China Trading Company. He had not bothered to make any enquiries about the milk after that.

Cheong Man then gave evidence, deposing to having sold one case of "Strong Man" brand milk, and a dozen small tins of the same brand to Lam Wing, and later another three dozen tins. The milk belonged to the Holland China Trading Company, from whom he had bought it.

The hearing of the case was then adjourned until 2.30 p.m. on June 28.

WORDS! WORDS!

HONGKONG RADIO SERVICE BUSINESS

Last year the Hongkong Radio Service, which now operates point-to-point services with eight foreign countries, sent 5,454,624 words of Morse traffic, a net increase over the previous year of more than 15 per cent.

The total number of messages handled by the service was 4,633,148, making approximately twelve words to each radiogram handled. Unpaid traffic amounted to 1,278,922 words.

These messages included anti-piracy radiograms, of which there were 11,169 (11,128 received and 81 transmitted), police messages, meteorological messages, Rugby press news, and navigational and health messages.

The busiest point-to-point service was that linking with the Chinese Government stations at Amoy, Canton, Foochow, Swatow and Shanghai. Over a million words were exchanged with these stations.

Sixty-seven licences were issued to ship stations, 44 to dealers.

Nineteen amateurs were licensed during the year, while 4,201 listeners took out licences, the latter figure being a record.

Hongkong now operates direct radio communication services with British North Borneo, Dutch East Indies, French Indo-China, Formosa, the Philippines (and thence to the United States and other parts of the world), China, Macao and Siam.

FRANCE OPPOSES GERMAN DEMAND

FIRM STAND TAKEN ON FLEET ISSUE

BALANCE OF POWER IN DANGER OF TOPPLING

Paris, June 17.

It is believed here that the French Government has sent a chilly reply to Great Britain's naval note. It is understood the Government neither refuses to adhere to an agreement in preparation in London nor assents to the understanding on which it is based.

It is believed the note points out that an increase in the German fleet to 35 per cent. of the British tonnage would create a grave problem for Germany's Continental neighbours. Also it would upset the equilibrium established by the Washington Treaty, France adds.

In this event France could not submit to the limitations of the Washington Treaty and would have to resume liberty of action with regard to warship construction.

It is also believed that the note stresses the inter-dependence of land, sea and air armaments, as admitted at the Disarmament Conference, and recalls the Declaration of December 11, 1932, subordinating German rearmament to the organisation of collective security.

The French note closes with an appeal that the balance of power won't be easily upset by an accelerated building programme on Germany's part, which her powerful industrial capacity would render possible.—Reuter.

U.S. INTERESTED

Washington, June 17.

The United States is taking an interest in the Anglo-German naval conversations and in the understanding reportedly reached between them.

It will not affect American treaty building, the Navy Department says, which will not be speeded up in advance of schedule.—Reuter.

READY FOR CONFERENCE

London, June 17.

The replies of the French and Italian Governments to the British communication with regard to the Anglo-German naval conversations have now been despatched to London.

The French reply will be delivered to the British Foreign Office by M. Corbin, the French Ambassador, to-morrow.

In view of the fact that M. Laval, the French Premier, received the Italian Ambassador to Paris before despatch of the French reply, it is presumed that the Notes will be in similar terms and will reserve freedom of action.

It is reported from Rome that the Italian reply expresses the opinion that the German proposals should be considered in conjunction with the Washington Treaty, and not independently thereof.

The reply is said to declare that Italy is prepared to participate in a conference, including France, if one is convened.

Since the Anglo-German agreement makes German naval construction dependent upon Britain's it is assumed by unofficial observers in London that Britain must be assured by Germany that if France embarks upon naval expansion, Britain will increase correspondingly, in order to allow Germany to increase.—Reuter.

BIG RELIEF PROGRAMME UNDER WAY

ROOSEVELT HANDS OUT HIS "DOLE"

WORK FOR JOBLESS

Washington, June 17.

President Roosevelt to-day handed over a gigantic works programme to the State Relief Administration chiefs.

Addressing the Administrators at the White House, the President expressed the belief that 1935 would see the beginning of the absorption of the majority of the unemployed.

"We must divide 3,500,000 men into 4,000,000,000 dollars," he said. "That means heartache for those who have extensive projects in mind. You will have to turn down many splendid projects which will not fall within the arithmetic of the situation."

"Practically all the money must be spent at a rate of $1,100 or $1,200 per man, including materials, overhead charges, as well as pay itself."

"I want every Administrator to make every effort to get the unemployed into private industry even if it means stopping some of the jobs we have undertaken."

STERN RULE IN OMAHA

GOVERNOR'S MILITARY DICTATORSHIP

Omaha, June 17.

Using the full powers of a military dictatorship under martial law, the Governor of the State of Nebraska has ordered all trams off the streets of Omaha following the tramway company's failure to meet his demand that an arbitrator be appointed with a view to settling the tramway strike.

This strike, which the company attempted to break, has already cost the life of one man and caused riots of a very serious nature in several parts of the city.

The National Guard is in control of the situation.—Reuter.

PAYMENT IN SHIPS

Tientsin, June 18.

It is learned that the Soviet Government is holding negotiations with the Japanese authorities for the building of a fleet of twenty-four steamers in Japan, which are to be part of the C.E.R. payments. A detailed plan for this bargain has been submitted by the Soviet authorities.—Central News.

In London, silver prices were down a farthing. India sold, while China operated both ways. The market was quietly steady.—News.

Rebel Ships Coming To Hongkong

NO IMPEDIMENT TO ENTRY ONE SEAMAN DEAD

The rebel Chinese cruisers Hai Chi and Hai Shen, which anchored at Chekwan, just outside British waters, yesterday, have announced their intention of coming into the harbour to-day, it is learned from authoritative sources.

No buoy has been allocated to the ships, and if they enter they will probably go to a naval berth.

CANTON'S REQUEST

Canton, June 18.

It is understood that General Chan Chaitong, Commander-in-Chief of the Canton forces, has telephoned to Nanking requesting that the Navy Ministry despatch the cruiser Haining to pursue the runaway warships, Hai Shen and Hai Chi.

Nanking has been asked to have the Haining standing by in case the rebel ships leave the vicinity of Hongkong waters and the shelter there afford.—Reuter.

SEAMAN'S DEATH

Of the three wounded ratings brought into Hongkong yesterday and sent to the Government Civil Hospital, Kuk Shing-kung, a seaman, who was in a serious condition when admitted, died at 5.30 this morning. He was said to be suffering from shell shock on admission, and it is now stated that his death was not due to wounds.

Another seaman, Yeung Shih-man, who has a wound in the thigh, is still in a serious condition.

The officer, Wong Shun-king, is progressing favourably.

Clipper's Route

PACIFIC STATIONS NEAR COMPLETION

Midway Island, June 17.

The Oriental Clipper, giant ocean-going amphibian, took off at 8.54 p.m. to-day, Pacific Standard Time, on her return journey to Honolulu.

In the first five hours and a half of her flight she had covered 795 miles.

The cockpit was entirely curtained and the big ship flew entirely blind, guided only by direction radio beams.

The Wake Island base, it is now announced, will be completed by July 1 and the personnel is already here.

It is likely that the next Clipper flight will be from San Francisco to Wake Island, to Guam and, perhaps, to Manila.—United Press.

Honolulu, June 17.

The Oriental Clipper arrived here from Midway Island at 2.58 p.m. G.M.T. to-day.—Reuter.

WOMEN CAN'T BE MINERS

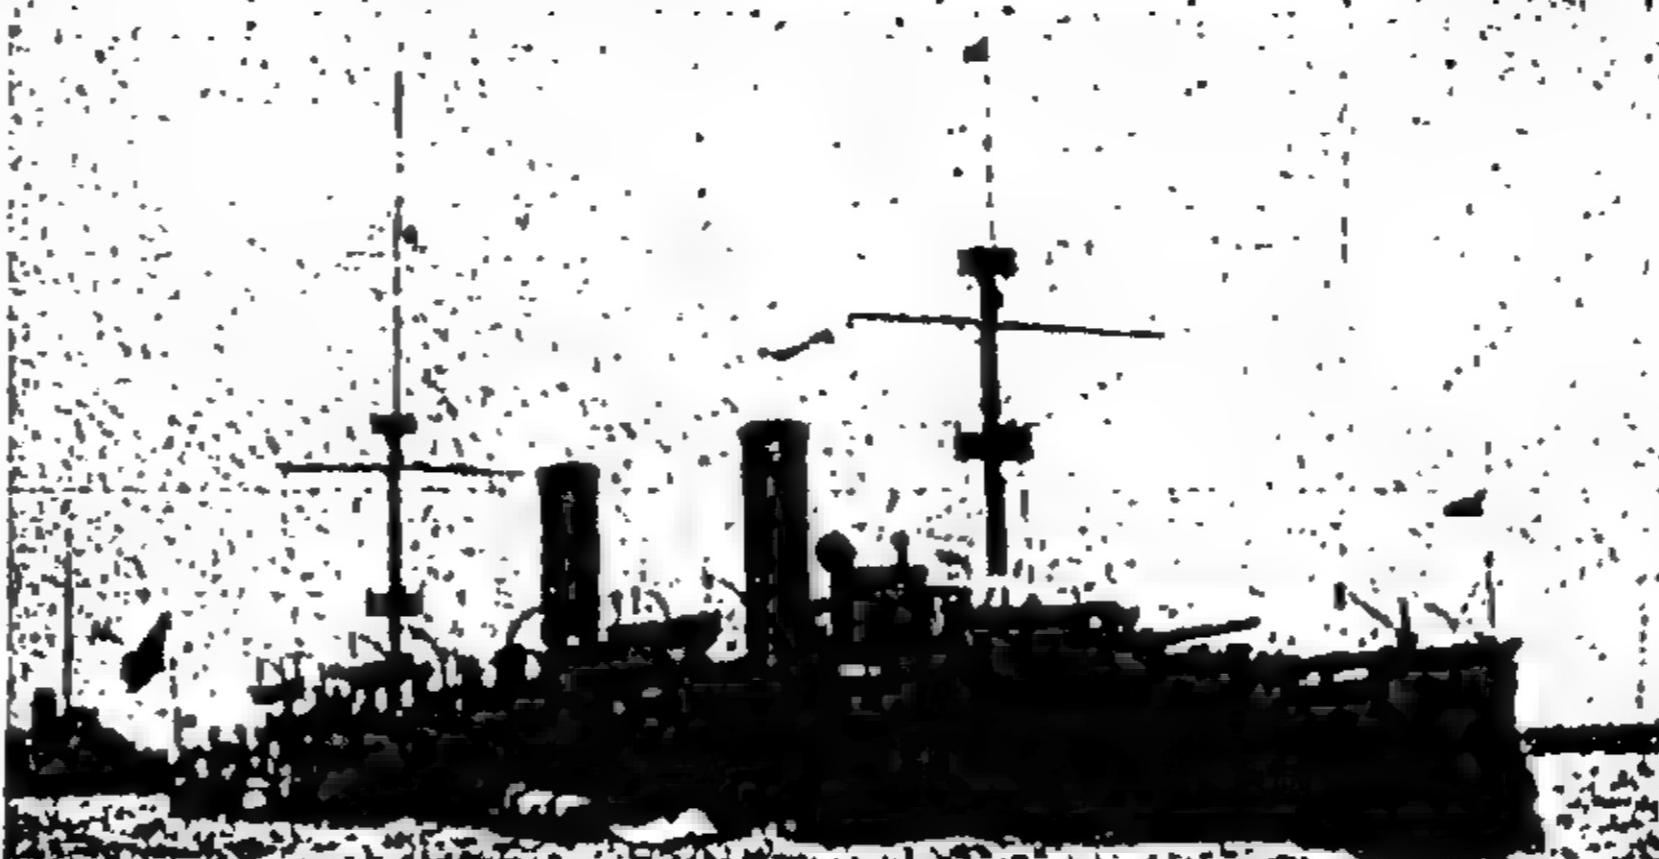

REFORM ACCEPTED BY ALL

(Special to "Telegraph")

Genoa, June 17.

The International Labour Conference has adopted a Convention prohibiting the employment of women in mines.

The principle involved is already in force in most countries, but India expects to eliminate underground female labour by 1939, while Japan has already accepted in principle the entire elimination of women miners.—United Press.

The Chinese cruiser Hai Chi, which, with the Hai Shen, escaped from Canton yesterday and arrived at Chekwan, just outside British waters. A naval pinnace from the Hai Chi sent four wounded men into Hongkong, of whom three are now at the Government Civil Hospital.

Young Man Sentenced To Death

SEQUEL TO MURDER OF WAITRESS

WANTS AGONY ENDED

"If your Lordship decides to pass sentence of death on me and not to reduce it to one of life imprisonment, I hope you will pass an early death sentence so as to save me from further agony."

Thus said Chau Chung, alias Chau Chung-yu, aged 23, when he pleaded guilty before His Honour the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Criminal Sessions this morning in a charge of murdering Chui Wai-hing, 20-year-old waitress of the Kon So Restaurant, outside 39 Upper Lascar Row on the morning of April 30.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant Attorney-General, appeared for the Crown, and Mr. R. C. H. Lim, instructed by Mr. M. W. Lo, was for the defence.

After accused had pleaded guilty to the charge, Mr. Lim asked his Lordship, under section 52 of the Criminal Procedure Ordinance, to exercise his discretion as to whether to accept his plea or not. He (Mr. Lim) had had ample opportunity to explain the circumstances of the case to accused, who, he thought, realised the full consequence of his plea. The reason why he asked His Lordship to exercise his discretion was to save accused from further agony.

His Lordship suggested that Mr. Lim should further consult his client and explain to him the full consequence of his plea.

ADHERES TO PLEA

Mr. Lim then held a brief consultation with accused, after which he told His Lordship that his client still pleaded guilty.

His Lordship then enquired if prisoner had been kept under observation and directed Dr. Ingram Shaw, medical officer of Victoria Gaol, to give evidence on this point.

Dr. Shaw said he had not kept accused under actual observation but he had been to the Gaol Hospital for ten days. He believed that accused understood the charge of murder perfectly.

His Lordship: A few minutes ago he had an opportunity of doing (Continued on Page 7).

UNFORTUNATE COMPOSER

To just how great an extent government benevolence makes it easier for the young French composer to get his work played may be judged from the recent case of Ernest Fraggi, by no means an unknown composer (his opera "A quoi revient les jeunes filles" has been presented in Marseilles), who has exceptional relations with the persons who decide what music is to be played. Nevertheless this was his experience with a ballet

One reviewer—Emile Vuillermoz of "Excelsior"—was alone in hearing Fraggi's composition. He reported that it was miserably played, and that without explanation the last section, listed on the programme, was omitted, the orchestra having had time that very morning only to run through once the earlier parts of the composition, because it devoted most of its time to the preparation of that unknown work, Beethoven's "Eroica Symphony."

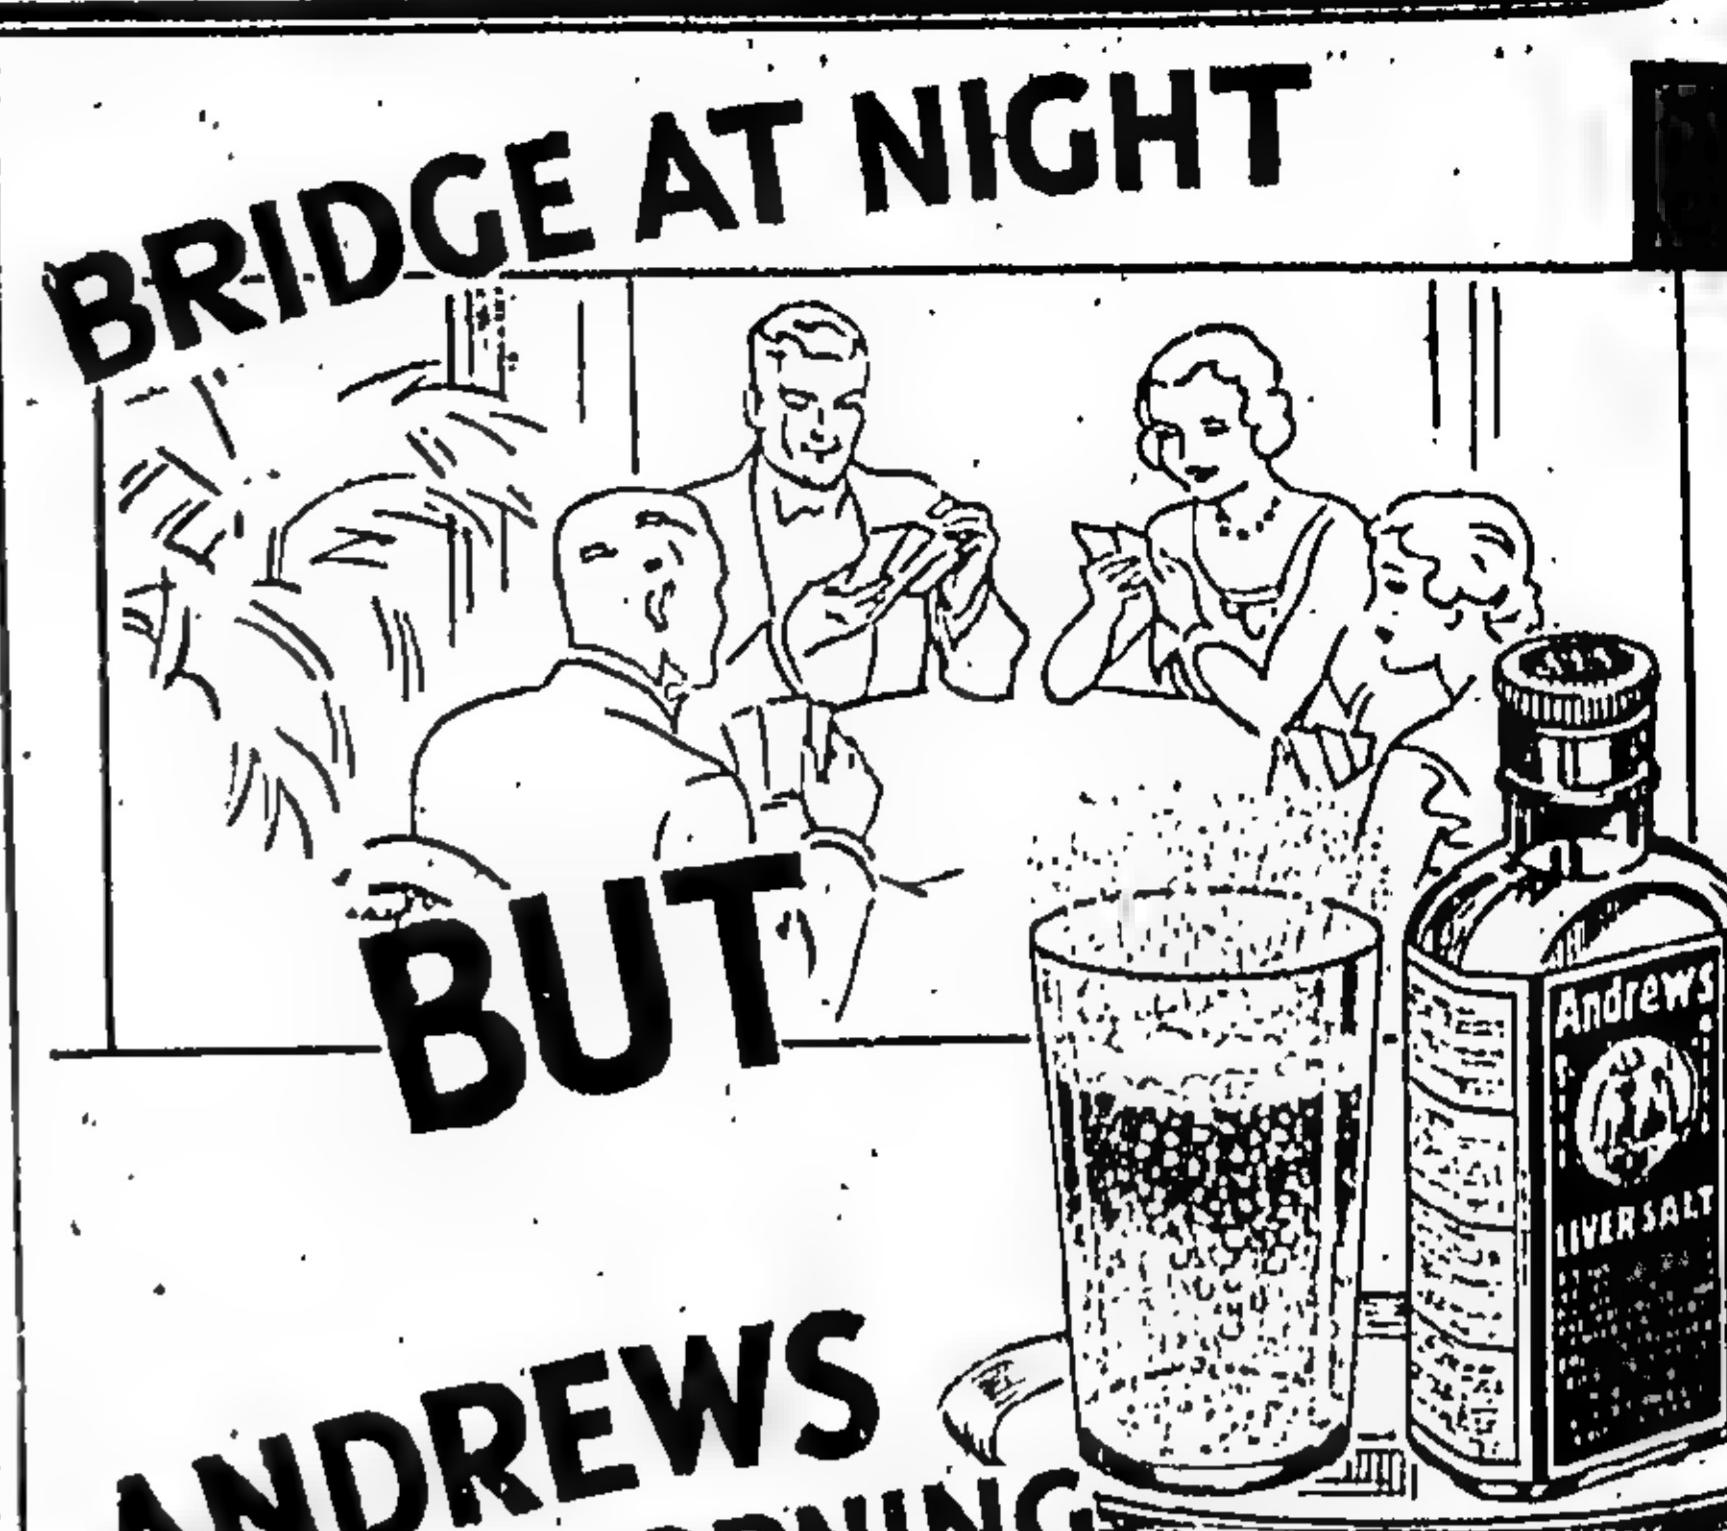

That was the result of Fraggi's years of effort to get his piece before the public, and now that the subsidy has been collected for its presentation, it is unlikely that it will be played again.—United Press.

"FATHER OF HIS COUNTRY" RETURNS TO P.I.

MANUEL QUEZON'S POLICY IS "AMERICA FIRST"

Manuel L. Quezon, whom the Philippines may honour with election as first president, in a portrait just completed by Leon Gordon, noted painter.

A bronze little man with gray hair is back in native Philippines Islands to face what very likely will be glorious climax to a life of public service.

He is Manuel L. Quezon, for years the president of the Philippines Senate and guiding spirit of his people. Unless all signs fail, he will be the first president of the Philippines commonwealth, which is established under the recently enacted Philippines Independence bill.

So potent an influence in the life of his people has he become that rival political parties are expected to bury their prejudices to pay him the signal honour of making him the unopposed candidate for the presidency in the election to be held in September 15—an accolade comparable to George

Washington's "Father of His Country" title, though Quezon has won independence for the islands through diplomacy in stead of force of arms.

PUTS AMERICAN INTERESTS FIRST

As he started on his 8,000-mile journey home from the United States he left behind an assurance of protecting American interests in the islands which, as president, he would be able to carry into effect:

"The Filipinos thrill to the knowledge that they have been raised to the estate of free men, conscious that the situation has been made possible by American appreciation of the pricelessness to all people of independence. There can be no doubt that as

Regarding the political future of the islands, he would only say: "Events shape and reshape themselves with startling rapidity in the Orient these days. A year or two may produce results and reactions that no mind could to-day be expected to forecast."

As he journeys westward there echoes his heartfelt appreciation for the island's independence:

"No nation in history has ever done so magnanimous and so unselfish an act as has been performed by the United States in granting the Philippines their independence. This act was not the result of revolution or duress. It was the voluntary act of a great nation in granting to a small dependent country the right of self-determination. Time can never remove from the minds of my people—those of this or any other generation—an appreciation of this act—unprecedented in the history of nations."

ADDISON'S DISEASE

NEW TREATMENT FOR OLD ILLS

Detroit. New treatments for Addison's disease, neuroses, and pernicious anemia and a new technique for building immunity against infectious diseases were reported in papers presented before the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Three of the four advances grew out of experiments upon the adrenal glands. These glands, triangular bodies about half the size of your thumb, are perched one on each kidney, like a cocked gun but on the head of a New Year's Eve celebrator.

Dr. Arthur Grollman and Dr.

W. M. Firor of the Johns Hopkins medical school announced perfection of a method by which cortin, the hormone of powerful chemical substance secreted by the outer layer or cortex of the adrenal gland, can be made to combine with charcoal. This charcoal compound can then be taken through the mouth. In the stomach, the cortin is set loose from the charcoal.

It is believed that this will prove a suitable treatment for Addison's disease.

NEUROSIS AND SHEEP

Addison's disease, characterized by changes in the pigments of the skin, general muscular weakness, and derangement of the digestive process is fatal.

The possibility that cortin might constitute a treatment for neuroses and other nervous conditions was seen in experiments reported by Dr. H. S. Liddell, Dr. O. D. Anderson, Dr. E. Kotyuk, and Dr.

F. A. Hartman of Cornell University.

Sheep were made to respond to stimuli which were so much alike it was impossible for the animal clearly to distinguish between them. A condition known as "experimental neurosis" was thus established.

When the sheep were given adrenalin, the hormone secreted by the central portion of the adrenal glands, their nervous condition was accentuated. But the sheep were calmed and their nervous responses improved by injections of cortin. It was believed cortin might prove suitable treatment for certain nervous conditions in human beings.

HYPNOSIS AID

The use of a cortico-adrenal extract to increase immunity against infectious diseases was seen in experiments reported by Dr. C. A. Fox and Dr. R. W. Whitehead of the University of Colorado medical school.

Removal of the adrenal glands in animals lowers their resistance to toxins, drugs, and infectious processes, and causes deficiency in ability to build up immune bodies in the blood stream.

The Colorado experimenters found that injections of a cortico-adrenal extract would aid rats in battling infections and developing immune bodies.

Contraction of the stomach by hunger can be reduced by the aid of hypnosis, Dr. H. L. Frick, Dr. R. E. Scantlebury and Dr. T. L. Patterson of Wayne University reported. A new and simple method of preparing vitamin G in pure crystalline form from liver extract was reported by Dr. Samuel Lepkovsky, Dr. William Popper, Jr., and Dr. Herbert M. Evans of the University of California.

United Press.

A shock was in store for depositors in Ningpo Industrial Bank, Ltd., Nanking Road, which closed its doors owing to financial difficulties. Photo shows a section of the crowd which gathered outside the building to try to get its money.

With only half a crew, but with Angus Walters at the helm, Canada's most famous schooner, the Bluenose, queen of the Atlantic fishing fleet, sails for England and a barnstorming tour of the British Isles.

THE PHILIPPINES
PROBLEM

A distinct step forward in the realisation of Philippines independence is marked by the announcement of Mr. Frank Murphy, the Governor General, that September 17 has been fixed as the date on which the Commonwealth elections will be held.

The plebiscite recently held showed a tremendous majority in favour of the new Constitution; it now remains for Filipino electors to vote for the first time for their own President, who will nominally control the destinies of the islands until independence becomes absolute ten years hence. Although there is general agreement that the transition period may be one of some difficulty, optimism is felt as to the future of the islands. For the next ten years, the United States will still remain responsible for protection of the Philippines. Congress recently passed a law authorising appointment of a military mission to the islands, and America will retain the right to intervene in Philippines affairs until the decade expires.

The situation at the moment, and to some extent the future also, is somewhat influenced by the fears felt in some quarters that Japan may cast covetous eyes on the territory, and it is thus thought that an untoward combination of circumstances might lead the United States into an extremely difficult position, even after the task of getting out of the islands had formally begun. It is of interest, therefore, to note four suggestions which have just been put forward by Mr. Raymond Leslie Buell on behalf of the American Foreign Policy Association. He suggests that it might be better to grant independence right away, so as to avoid the difficult transition period; the signing of a reciprocity agreement between the United States and the Philippines, to save the islanders from economic collapse; the employment by the new Philippine Republic of expert advisers nominated by some such body as the League of Nations; and an international agreement among the Pacific Powers to guarantee

NOTES OF THE DAY

FLYING FOR ALL

Horv Kronfeld's flight in an engined glider from London to Paris at a cost of barely £6, for petrol and oil brings flying for the million appreciably nearer. Low-powered aircraft are clearly destined to do for the air what the light car has done for the roads. This flight between two capitals has shown something of their potentialities. It is now possible to own a machine which costs no more than an inexpensive motor-car; and to fly it for 9s. an hour. Besides being cheap and easy to manipulate, the engined glider has a low landing speed, which is a safety factor of no small importance to the intending pilot. The day is coming when most people will fly as a natural mode of transport. Cheaper flight will be of great service in encouraging airmindedness. The light aeroplane is being rapidly developed abroad, notably in France, where the "flying flea" is extremely popular, and Germany, America and to some extent Britain, are studying this field of progress.

TAKING THE SKY TRAILS

Dr. Harlow Shapley recently told an "Open Night" audience at Harvard Observatory that in the last thirteen years 30,000 to 40,000 persons have visited the great astronomical research station in Cambridge, which periodically opens its doors to the public in the interest of widening popular knowledge of the cosmos. Progress in photography and the spectroscopic investigation of stellar light have greatly strengthened the ties of interest which have been built up in recent years between astronomers and laymen.

The routine work of the professional astronomer is highly technical and pains-taking. The vast bulk of it is accomplished not by visual observation of the heavens but by extremely refined photographic methods. Expert interpretation of the product of telescope and camera is essential, and the advances achieved in equipment are immensely valuable in popularizing the revelations of the "sky patrol." Four motor-driven telescopic cameras record the happenings above Harvard's new Oak Ridge station in Massachusetts throughout every clear night of the year, and mechanized observation of the sky is continuous at many other points throughout the world. Astronomy to-day leaves no stone unturned to enrich its knowledge of the cosmic creation. And the observations of laymen are encouraged through organized methods of reporting the flights of meteors and the study of variable stars. Real contributions to natural science have resulted from astronomy's refusal to "high-hat" the man in the street. The gain in culture which has resulted from this entente cordiale between specialist and layman is worth noting, and the perspective realised from contact with supergastric interests is one of unimaginable splendour. The modern observatory has made it possible in a striking sense for the layman to put Emerson's advice into play and to hitch "his wagon to a star."

TO-DAY'S MOTORIZING HINT

FABRIC UNIVERSAL JOINTS

The car will run for thousands of miles before the need arises for renewing the fabric in the universal joints. In course of time wear becomes noticeable and it is then that a repair should be effected to what is a vital part of the transmission system.

Many owner-drivers are keen to do all they can themselves, but it is not advisable for them to tackle this job. Fitting a piece of leather or ordinary fabric may appear to be all that is needed, but this is not so in practice.

It is essential that specially prepared fabric be used. Special discs are made for the purpose, these being formed of a number of layers of patent fabric arranged with the threads at angles. A direct pull is provided between each pair of bolt holes. Even these special discs require careful fitting, so it is better to entrust the work to a skilled mechanic.

neutralisation of the islands. In granting the Philippines independence, the United States is attempting to do two things: do justice to the Filipino people, and rid itself of a potentially embarrassing entanglement. It may therefore be that some such programme as has been suggested might produce the results desired in better way than is now proposed. Be that as it may, it would certainly be an ironic stroke of fate if the Philippines question should involve the United States in trouble after it had formally started to withdraw.

SIX PENNY FLIGHT TO PARIS

had a contrary wind I should have got over just the same. With my machine I can fly extremely low, and can therefore seek an altitude where wind velocity does not hinder me.

My machine takes off in 80 yards, just like the majority of planes, but instead of having to continue running in straight line after rising, I can turn within the limits of my take-off field and gradually rise in a spiral, practically like an autogiro.

A field of 200 yards in length is quite sufficient for me to take to the air. I can land at 18 miles per hour, and therefore I need not fear a crash. Should I have to land on rough ground I simply sit down.

Now imagine what a wonderful sporting achievement it would be if we could have hundreds of gliding clubs in England, and tens of thousands of young men and women gliders taking off from almost any flat field or piece of common ground; able to take an evening gliding flight for 30 or 40 miles out into the country and back, or go to Scotland for a week-end from Surrey.

When I landed in Paris my petrol tank was barely half empty. I could have continued my journey for about another 230 miles, which would have taken me to near Geneva.

And to think that because I thought I needed all that petrol I almost overloaded myself and for the first time took a large parachute with me!

Both the British and the French Air Ministries, it should be pointed out, are eager to help this new movement in cheap flying, and it is thanks to both of them that I was able to obtain the necessary permits without difficulty.

There are heaps of people who want to fly but who cannot do so because of the cost. They must have a cheap machine on which they can rely.

In trying to create this cheap plane small wing loading has been made a feature, as experience has proved that machines with a light weight per square foot are extremely safe.

With the machine with which I crossed over yesterday—a B.A.C. Drone—all kinds of risky things can be done which could not be attempted with an ordinary plane. There is no danger of stalling.

A flight of 800 to 1,000 miles would be possible with this same machine equipped with a bigger tank.

I may point out that the B.A.C. Drone is fitted with a 600 c.c. Douglas engine developed out of a standard motor-cycle. It is practically the same as that of the (Continued on Next Column.)

motorcycle, but with small modifications for aviation purposes.

The glider which I have just delivered, cost $275. The French glider company, however, with the subsidies which are given for such craft by the French Air Ministry, hope to be able to deliver to their clients a glider built in series at from something like £160 to £180.

That is the proper spirit. There is no doubt that we are now in the Flying Age. For the spirit and knowledge of flying to be spread everywhere among our youth we want flying gliders to be available for them as cheaply as a runabout car, and, soon, perhaps, almost as cheaply as a motor-cycle.

PLANNING ATLANTIC AIRWAY

MAMMOTH CRAFT TO SPAN OCEAN

LUXURY CRAFT

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright. Telegraphic Message, Ordinance, 1931. Received, June 18, 5.20 a.m.)

London, June 17. A trans-Atlantic passenger service by mammoth aeroplanes equipped with cinemas, dance floors and cocktail bars, is foreshadowed by the announcement of the proposed formation of the British Bellanca Aircraft Corporation, with a capital of £400,000.

Mr. Howard Kronick, of the Bellanca Aircraft Corporation of America, states that plans are going ahead for a plane construction plant at Speke, near Liverpool.

Mr. Kronick added that it was hoped that the plant would be ready within five months, and that the service will start early next year.—Reuter Special.

U.S. Silver Price

FLUCTUATIONS NOT DESIRABLE

Washington, June 17. Silver industrial authorities in close touch with the situation, today expressed the opinion that there is a growing belief among the western miners that the United States Treasury should cease meddling with the silver price.

Nine important operators say that they would welcome the price of $1.29 but say that it is most undesirable to have violent fluctuations in the price of silver.

Some miners say that they would prefer an increase in the price of base metals instead of an increase in the price of silver.

This, they say, is because in most of the United States mines it is unprofitable to produce complex ores unless a fair price can be obtained for the base metals.—United Press.

The increased imports were mainly in respect of raw materials and articles mainly manufactured for British staple industries.—Reuter Special.

Although the visit is private, Amir Saud will be the guest of His Majesty's Government for the first two weeks of his stay, which will extend over four or five weeks, and a programme has been prepared for his entertainment during the period of official hospitality. It is expected that the Amir will be received by the King in formal audience and will attend the third Court on June 25.—British Wires.

BRITAIN BUILDS FOR PEACE

REALISES URGENCY OF AIR PACT

BALDWIN SNAPS BACK AT LANSBURY

London, June 17. Something of Great Britain's policy and plans in connection with the protection of Europe against war and the defence of her own shores in case of aggression, was revealed when the House of Commons resumed to-day.

The particularly responsible and delicate business of achieving an aerial pact amongst the European powers was in the hands of Mr. Anthony Eden, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the Prime Minister stated when answering the somewhat critical remarks of Mr. George Lansbury, Labour leader. He had twitted the Prime Minister upon the duties of the Ministers without portfolio, of whom Mr. Eden is one, and Mr. Baldwin was curt in his reply.

The House was told something of the plans to expand the Royal Air Force and the steps which were being taken to guard against profiteering in the aircraft industry.

The House of Commons cordially welcomed the new Ministers at its reassembling after the Whitson recess. The former Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, appeared relaxed in the House for the first time in six years. He sat resolutely on the Treasury bench, his eyes half-closed.

Mr. George Lansbury, the Labour leader, twitted Mr. Stanley Baldwin, the new Prime Minister, upon the duties of the new Ministers. Without Portfolio and the duties of the new Lord President of the Council, who is Mr. MacDonald.

CAUSE OF PEACE

Mr. Baldwin replied with some asperity. Mr. Eden's appointment, he declared, would materially strengthen Great Britain's contribution to world peace. He believed it was an advantage to have ministers in a government who could concentrate upon policy without the distractions of departmental responsibilities creeping into their thoughts.

He added that of all the offices he had held he had never had more work or less pay than when he had assumed the post of Lord President of the Council.

Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal wing leader, asked what progress had been made towards a European Air Pact.

Sir Samuel Hoare replied that the Government was giving that matter its "closest consideration. They fully realised its extreme urgency," he added.

Various questions both of principle and procedure were involved and inevitably required frequent interchanging of opinions between the powers concerned.

In the circumstances he thought it would be better not to enter upon a discussion of details of the situation.

NO PROFITEERING

With regard to the danger of profiteering and with respect to its prevention during the rush of work for the expansion of the Royal Air Force, Sir Philip Cuniffe-Lister, Air Minister, announced that the Ministry had established comprehensive machinery, involving consultation with the Treasury, covering the whole range of contracts involved and providing for control of prices.

The Air Ministry intended to make sure that no one reaped an excessive profit, said Sir Philip.—Reuter.

A remarkable flight to Africa and back in one day, by light aeroplane, was achieved in a machine designed and piloted by Capt. W. E. Percival to-day. It left Gravesend at 1.30 a.m. for Oran, 1,400 miles away, and arrived there at 8.40 a.m.

The plane refuelled and left again for Croydon at 6.25 p.m. Percival's object was to bring to the public notice the advance made in the sphere of small machines, no less than in large.—Reuter.

LORRY DRIVER FINED

FOR OBSTRUCTING MOTORIST

Mr. J. H. Seth, of Messrs. Percy Smith, Seth and Fleming, gave evidence before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning against Ma Yuk, driver of lorry 2570, on a summons for failing to draw into the left hand side of the road to allow a vehicle to overtake him in Queen's Road East near Wellington Barracks on May 31 last.

Mr. Seth testified that he was driving eastward and sounded his horn several times but the lorry would not let him pass. Rather than run into the electric standard in the road, witness ran into the rear of the lorry. The defendant looked round and then drove on to Arsenal Street. Witness chased and stopped him. The lorry had a driving mirror.

Defendant was convicted and fined $5.

SECOND DAY'S PLAY IN BRITISH AMATEUR GOLF

T. B. MITCHELL

AMERICAN HOLDER WINS THROUGH

Lawson Little Plays Like A Champion

By Vagrant, at St. Annes

London, May 22.

Lawson Little, U.S.A., the holder, ran into his best form here yesterday in beating Eric Martin Smith, who won the title in 1931. Much of his delicacy 'round the greens had returned to him, and the further the game went the longer he got. At the 14th, 450yds., he was twelve feet from the flag with a No. 5 iron. Martin Smith proved a worthy foeman, and it was not until the turn that Little was able to shake him off.

Little started in typical style, putting a delicate little chip stroke dead to get a winning three. He went further ahead at the 3rd, where Martin Smith pulled his drive into a far away bunker. He recovered well, but Little ran his approach putt up stone dead—a beautifully struck putt—and, as we waited at the 4th, the truth struck home forcibly that Little was playing the best golf he has done over here this year.

Both missed short putts on the 4th, and Little won the next in six, playing a good recovery from the bottom of a ditch, but was twice bunkered on his progress to the green at the next. Tulloch was far from happy with his wooden seconds, and Tolley sailed away from the pit to turn five up. His figures out were 4, 6, 6, 6, 3, 4, 3, 4, 3—38. Coming in, Tolley began to find length and accuracy and, with Tulloch unable to raise a pull-up, a disappointing contest ended.

E. F. Storey just got home by one hole against the hon. Michael Scott P. W. L. Risdon played some capital golf in beating J. S. T. Morrison by 7 and 6. His figures out were 3, 4, 5, 3, 3, 4, 4, 4—34, and he started home 4, 4, 4. Francis Francis bumped into a tough one in John Burke, former Irish champion, who was out in 35 to be 3 up. Francis made few mistakes, but every one cost him a hole.

Burke came home in 3, 2, 4, 4, 3, 4, and finished the high hopes of Francis. This is the luck of a championship, where some folk go out in 40 to find themselves in the lead.

Leslie Garnett travelled smoothly in beating Count de Borghgrave. The match was square at the turn, which both reached in 38. Then Garnett brought his heavy artillery into action and with 4, 4, 2, 2, 4, 4, 4, 4, brought a summary conclusion to the affair.

THOMPSON'S GOOD SHOWING

In another fine game A. S. G. Thompson beat Harry Bentley. Thompson was out in 35 to his opponent's 36 and one up after some extremely exciting give and take. Thompson started by winning the 1st in 2, holing from six feet. Bentley then won the 4th and lifted over a stymie to win the 5th. Thompson won three and again took the lead when he holed a putt right across the green at the 7th.

Coming in, Thompson slowly forged ahead and was never troubled.

E. Gibbs fulfilled the expectations of many and went to victory quite uneventfully by the surroundings. When he beat Captain C. G. B. Stevens by six and five he was still under fours.

Brisbane, May 21.

Unless £3,000 can be raised the Australian Olympic Federation may not be able to send a team to the Games which are being held in Berlin next year.

A POOR MATCH

After the alarms and excursions of Monday it would have required a lot to surprise us yesterday, and nothing of the sort was forthcoming.

Chief interest of the morning was centred on the meeting of Cyril Tolley and William Tulloch, a Scottish international who has twice reached the semi-final round in this event.

It proved extremely poor fare for the most part, neither player touching his accustomed form.

Tulloch started with the disconcerting experience of missing from under two feet for the half, but he squared at the next by holing a six-yarder,

T. B. MITCHELL TAKES ALL TEN WICKETS

SECOND DERBY BOWLER

London, June 17. T. B. Mitchell, the Derbyshire and former England bowler, has added his name to the list of cricket immortals by capturing all ten wickets in an innings in a first class match. Mitchell has just performed the feat in the County Cricket Championship whilst playing for Derbyshire against Leicestershire.

His final figures read:

O. M. R. W.
10.1 4 64 10

—Reuter

Mitchell, who was born in 1902, is a leg-break slow bowler and is considered one of the best of his type in the country. The latest copy of "Wisden's" speaks thus of the Derbyshire bowler, "Mitchell, taking 138 wickets for just over 17 runs apiece, beat his own record set up the previous summer and deservedly topped the averages. His exceptional success on hard wickets brought him recognition in two of the Test matches with the Australians. In these games, however, Mitchell's skill in spinning the ball and usually good command over length deserted him."

Mitchell is the second Derbyshire bowler to take all ten wickets in a match. In 1921 W. Bestwick, when playing against Glamorgan at Cardiff bowled 10 overs, two of which were maidens and conceded 40 runs.

T. W. Wall, the Australian fast bowler, was the last to perform the feat. He captured all ten wickets for South Australia at Sydney against New South Wales in 1922-23. After having taken one wicket for 31, Wall's figures then were 54 overs, 2 maidens, 5 runs, 10 wickets.

Tai Yang For The Stud

FAMOUS HORSE RETIRED

Mr. H. E. Morris, the racehorse owner, stated that his horse, Tai Yang, has finished with racing, and will be retired to stud forthwith.

I have just heard from Mr. Fred Darling, the Beckingham trainer, that the difficulties which have hampered the training of Tai Yang, during his racing career have recurred, and that he will not be able to complete his preparation for the Ascot Gold Cup, which is to be run on Thursday, June 20. He will, therefore, be scratched from the race, and will be retired to stud.

Tai Yang is unbeaten. Although he is five years old he has had only two races as a three-year-old. He won the Jockey Club Stakes at Newmarket, and he was successful four weeks ago in the Chippingham

The only match in the American League was that between Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians, the latter winning easily.

Some time ago an attendant was dismissed for making a book with inmates. But the committee never suspected that the business had been taken over by a patient.

"And inmates are supposed not to be in possession of all their faculties," commented a member of the committee when informed of the discovery.

The £28 is to be spent on games for the patients' amusement.

MENTAL PATIENTS RUN "BOOKIE" BUSINESS

DISCOVERY MADE IN ASYLUM

A FLOURISHING TRADE

Betting among inmates of the City Mental Hospital, Caxlodge, Newcastle, was revealed recently when, on the death of the "bookmaker," punters asked the superintendent for their money back on a non-runner!

Officials had been mystified by the £28 among the effects of the patient, which were examined following his death.

TEE BALL LOWER FOR DRIVE

WHEN PLAYING IN WIND

FEAT BY JIMMY HINES

Although one of Jimmy Hines' best shots wasn't made in tournament play, it nevertheless rates as one of the best shots ever made by him.

Playing at Timber Point, L. I., in a friendly match, Hines faced the 216-yard fifteenth hole with the wind directly against him. The hole would not have been so difficult to play if it hadn't been for the wind.

Knowing that it would take a full drive to carry in the face of the breeze, Jimmy took a driver, teed off, and put the ball two feet from the pin, a remarkable shot.

Hines' secret in getting this distance on a windy day is as follows:

"Tee the ball lower for the drive, and hit down on it."

"When playing an iron against the wind, hit the ball more off the right foot, and close the blade of the club slightly."

"Play a pitch and run shot at all times when a gale is blowing in approaching, except when the approach is a short one."

South Africans Made To Follow OnWICKETS FALL FAST IN TRENT
BRIDGE CRICKET TEST

LONDON, June 17.
After the heavy rain of yesterday afternoon, the wicket was drying rapidly under the influence of sunshine and wind. As might be expected under such circumstances, R. E. S. Wyatt, the English captain, decided to declare with Saturday's total of 384 for seven wickets and let the South Africans make what they could of it.

The weather was fine and sunny when the South Africans commenced their innings before a crowd of 3,000 spectators. The pace of the wicket was easy.

After Bowes, Nichols, Verity and Robins had spells with the ball, the attack was eventually in the hands of Robins and Nichols. The latter was lifting the ball occasionally.

The South Africans opening batsmen, I. J. Sieidle and B. Mitchell, were on the defensive until Sieidle drove Robins past cover to the boundary ropes for the first boundary hit of the innings.

Scoring was exceptionally slow, Sieidle taking 51 minutes to get into double figures.

Mitchell hit a couple of boundaries and was then bowled by Nichols who sent down a ball which came up very fast off the pitch. He had been batting for 65 minutes for his 25 runs.

The score-board showed 42 runs when Mitchell left.

Sieidle was joined by E. A. Rowan, one of the most accomplished batsmen in the touring side. The newcomer settled down quickly and hit a four to the on-boundary, to hoist the half century in 68 minutes.

At lunch time, Sieidle and Rowan were still together. They had meanwhile taken the score to 98 for one wicket.

Mitchell hit a couple of boundaries and was then bowled by Nichols who sent down a ball which came up very fast off the pitch. He had been batting for 65 minutes for his 25 runs.

The score-board showed 42 runs when Mitchell left.

He then gave a "dolly" catch to Hammond, fielding second slip, off Verity shortly afterwards. The ball cocked up suddenly.

Sieidle, who had been batting very patiently all the while, was the next man to return to the pavilion. With his score at 59 he was bowled by the Yorkshire left-hander. He had contributed almost half his side's score of 120 for four wickets.

He reached his 50 with a leg boundary off Verity after being at the wicket for 160 minutes. He lost his wicket through attempting to make a big hit to leg. His innings was faultless, and included in his 59 were six boundary strokes. Altogether he batted for 176 minutes.

H. B. Cameron, the South African wicket-keeper, joined his captain, who at that stage was not out with five runs. Cameron at once showed that he was in an aggressive mood. Although Wade had been at the wicket for some little time, Cameron quickly overhauled him.

CAMERON AGGRESSIVE

When the score had been taken to 140 for four wickets, Cameron had 17 while Wade could only claim ten. Three fours were hit over by Cameron off Robins helped the South Africans to hoist the 150, which was reached after 220 minutes' play.

At 20, Cameron gave a difficult chance to Mitchell-Jones in the slips off Bowes. The ball kept low and was not accepted by the Oxford player.

Misfortune befell the South Africans when Wade mistimed a shot and was caught by Nichols in the slips off Verity.

The South African captain had contributed only 18, but he had seen the score taken from 103 to 174 for five wickets. He was at the crease for 105 minutes.

Shortly afterwards, Cameron got his 50.

Tea was then taken. Cameron having exactly 50 and K. G. Viljoen four.

The score was 100 for five wickets. The old saying that interval is the best change bowler was borne out after tea.

When play resumed, Cameron could only add two runs to his score. He was bowled by Nichols.

The score-board read 108 for six. Cameron played on after being at the wicket for 115 minutes, during which time he hit eight fours, the feature of his innings being fine drives on the leg side.

Vincent was out from the second ball he received, and with the score at 26, for 8, Viljoen had his off stump removed by one of Nicholls' express. Langston was unable to score and Crisp was caught at cover by Robins, Nichols again being the lucky bowler. The innings closed for 220.

Following on Sieidle was caught by Verity at short square-leg off Nichols for two runs, in the third over of the innings. Mitchell and Rowan then played out time.

CHAPTER XLVII

Sergeant Mahoney stopped the car in front of the apartment house. "I have been thinking," he said, "about Gentry. You say that he tried key to apartment 309 and it wouldn't work?"

"That's right."

"Then, until he got to apartment 309 he must have thought the key was going to work."

"Yes. Why?"

"In that event," he said, "he must have used the key to get into the apartment house. In other words, he must have opened the outer door with that key."

She stared at him, her forehead showing lines of bewilderment.

"In other words," Mahoney said, "someone gave Gentry a key to apartment 309. That someone had another apartment in the house and must have given Gentry the key to that apartment instead of apartment 309. Both keys would open the door of the apartment house itself. The peculiar knocks were merely a signal so the conspirators couldn't be surprised by anyone with a pass-key."

Millicent recognized the logic of his remarks. "Good heavens, yes! And perhaps that other apartment is where..."

"Exactly," he interrupted. "Now that apartment must be on the third floor. Norman was carried from apartment 309. He would never have left it voluntarily. They would hardly have taken him up or downstairs."

Sergeant Mahoney stepped from the car, rang the bell of the apartment marked "MANAGER." At the third ring a speaking tube whistled. A woman's voice said, "If this is a tenant who's forgotten a key, I'll open the door. If it's someone who wants an apartment, come back at a decent hour."

"It's the police," Sergeant Mahoney said. "Open the door and meet us in the corridor with a pass-key."

A moment later the door buzzed open. Sergeant Mahoney pushed his way into the apartment house. Millicent saw a big, blond woman with a white, frightened face, hugging a kimono about herself.

Sergeant Mahoney showed her his badge. "Give me a pass-key," he said.

She handed him the pass-key. Sergeant Mahoney escorted Millicent to the elevator, slid back the door of the cage, pressed the button for the third floor.

"When you get to that floor," he said, "get out and run up and down the corridor screaming, 'Norman, where are you?' After that, no matter what happens—naturally—that is, be frightened. Don't let on that you know the police have the place surrounded. For your information, I have men placed where they can come to your rescue whenever I give the signal, but I don't want to do that until I've got some incriminating evidence."

She nodded. "Good luck," he told her, stepped from the elevator and let the door close.

As the closing door made the electrical contact, the elevator lurched upward. It jolted to a stop at the third floor. Millicent saw a deserted corridor. She screamed, "Norman, Norman! Where are you?" and ran the length of the corridor.

Some man shouted through a closed door, "Pipe down. I want to sleep."

A door opened. A strange man stepped into the corridor.

"Are you looking for the man who was hurt in apartment 309?" he asked.

"Yes," Millicent said, and such was her eagerness to locate Norman that for the moment she entirely forgot she was bait for a death trap.

"I found him in the corridor," the man said. "He was unconscious. I took him in here and have been waiting for him to regain consciousness so I could find out what happened. He's not badly hurt."

He straightened, rubbing his wrists. Sergeant Mahoney stepped over to Dick Gentry, slowly shook his head.

"I'm sorry, boy," he said. "I had to do it. He'd have got the girl."

Millicent looked up then and saw that grim, silent figures had filed into the room, figures who moved with swift efficiency, jerking down the hands of the man who had lured her into the apartment, snapping handcuffs around his wrists.

"What happened, Norman?" she asked.

Sergeant Mahoney sat down beside Norman Happ. "It's important," he said, "for us to get everything you know and get it fast. Give us the bare facts and give them quickly."

"I went to 309," Norman Happ said, "knocked. No one answered. I started toward the elevator. This man," nodding his head toward the handcuffed prisoner, "stepped into the hallway. He asked me if I was a friend of Phyllis Faulconer. He said she had instructed him to let his friend into the apartment. It was a trap. I fell for it and said, 'Yes.' He let me into the apartment, struck at me with a blackjack. I was stunned but managed to tackle him."

Dick Gentry came in. We fought all over the apartment but they got me finally. They dragged me down to this place and have held me prisoner. I think this man is a hired thug. That's all I know."

"And, by God!" said the handcuffed man, "that's all you'll ever find out. You've killed Gentry. You've got nothing on me. I thought the man was a burglar."

Through an open door which led to the kitchenette, she saw Dick Gentry, an automatic in his hand, his lips twisted into an evil leer, taking deliberate aim at Norman Happ's struggling figure.

Millicent screamed, lunged forward.

The gun roared. She heard the impact of a bullet striking something solid as, with a savagery which surprised her, she lunged herself upon Dick Gentry and realized she was holding his wrist, struggling with him for the automatic.

"You little she-devil!" he exclaimed, as her teeth sank into his hand. "Take that!"

He kicked at her. The gun roared again. Something struck her in the side with numbing force. She heard a terrific roar, felt Dick Gentry grow suddenly limp. Sergeant Mahoney's voice, sounding deadly ominous, said, "Make a move and you'll get the same dose. Stick 'em up!"

Millicent broke free as Dick Gentry collapsed to the floor. She saw Sergeant Mahoney cutting at Norman's hands with a clasp knife, saw the strange man with his hands high above his head.

Millicent ran to Norman, screaming, "Are you hurt?" He grinned at her and said, "No. Why didn't you run when I warned you? Gentry was holding a gun on me. He said he'd shoot if I didn't lie perfectly still. I knew what they wanted. They wanted to get you in here. When I shouted down forward to dodge the bullet. A woman was with him. She ran. I couldn't see her clearly."

He straightened, rubbing his wrists. Sergeant Mahoney stepped over to Dick Gentry, slowly shook his head.

"I'm sorry, boy," he said. "I had to do it. He'd have got the girl."

Millicent looked up then and saw that grim, silent figures had filed into the room, figures who moved with swift efficiency, jerking down the hands of the man who had lured her into the apartment, snapping handcuffs around his wrists.

"And, by God!" said the handcuffed man, "that's all you'll ever find out. You've killed Gentry. You've got nothing on me. I thought the man was a burglar."

Sergeant Mahoney turned to him purposefully. "You," he said, "know where Phyllis Faulconer is. You can either talk or we'll take you to headquarters, and when we get done with you you'll be damn glad to talk."

The man snarled defiance. "Try and make me talk," he said.

"By God," Sergeant Mahoney said, grimly, "I will."

By W. E. McKenney

Here's one of the most interesting squeeze plays that I have seen for quite a while. I might term it some kind of a double backward squeeze.

The usual procedure in this type of play is for the opponent to find himself squeezed because he has to discard or play ahead of the third hand. But here's a double squeeze where first one opponent and then the other is forced to discard while playing as fourth hand to the squeeze trick.

To get the full benefit of the hand, I suggest that you lay the cards out on the table and follow it play for play.

The hand was sent to me by an old tournament friend, Joe Smith of Newark, O., well known to bridge players who used to attend the Tri-State tournament at Uniontown, which was conducted by Mr. Smith each year. As Joe states in his letter, he likes to bid grand slams and "nothing succeeds like success."

East's bid of three diamonds, of course, was for the sole purpose of trying to take a non-vulnerable sacrifice.

The Play

In response to his partner's diamond bid, West's opening lead was the five of diamonds, which was won in dummy with the ace. Now, even though the king of spades can be located, the hand looks almost impossible, but here's the procedure of play.

Declarer started right in to cash all his trumps. This left him with the ace-queen and deuce of spades and the three and two of clubs. The dummy was left with the jack of spades, king-jack of diamonds, and the ace-jack of clubs. West retained the nine, eight, and seven of spades and the king-queen of clubs. East kept the king-ten and six of spades and the queen-ten of diamonds.

Here's where this interesting double squeeze play develops. The three of clubs is led by South; West plays the queen and

ARMED ROBBERS SENTENCED

KOWLOON TONG INCIDENT

Tam Lin-fong, 20, and Kong Ho, 30, were sentenced to three years and three and a half years' hard labour respectively by the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Criminal Sessions this morning when they pleaded guilty to a charge of having committed an armed robbery, with another not in custody, at No. 1 Cornwall Road, Kowloon Tong, on May 12.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant Attorney General, appeared for the Crown.

The accused were charged with robbing three women: Chan Kit-mui, Ho Mo-yung and Tsui Yuet-wah, of a large quantity of jewellery worth $581, of which only $330 had been recovered.

When the case was first brought up at Kowloon Magistracy it was mentioned that the accused gained admittance to the house by pretending they were looking for someone, and after having done so they bound and gagged the occupants. Through a police agent, the accused were arrested in Canton on May 16, three days after the robbery.

BLUEJACKET AS COMPLAINANT

THEFT OF TROUSERS ALLEGED

A. B. Woodford, of H. M. S. Dainty, was the complainant before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning against Ip Chun, 23, scraper, charged with the theft of a pair of blue dungarees.

Defendant denied the charge and stated that the trousers were given to him about a month ago.

Detective-Sergeant D. Fitchett stated that on June 12, in the evening, complainant left the trousers over his locker and went to shore. On returning the following morning, Woodford found the trousers to be missing. On June 17, he saw the defendant, who was engaged in painting the ship in dock, wearing them. He identified them by a brown button which he had sewn on himself.

The Magistrate: Identification of a single brown button is not satisfactory.

Woodford stated that he could also identify the trousers by some marks of red lead.

Woodford gave evidence, after which the case was adjourned to-morrow.

MARCEL CAFE THEFTS

TWO EMPLOYEES GAOLED

Two men, Wong Yan and Leung Po, were sentenced to six weeks' hard labour each by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, when they were charged with theft by servant of foodstuffs from the Marcel Cafe, No. 70 Nathan Road, yesterday.

Inspector Stinson, who appeared for the prosecution, stated that first defendant was employed at the cafe as baker and second defendant was his assistant. It was suspected that things were being stolen from the premises, and a watch was kept. Yesterday the two men were seen leaving the cafe and were searched.

In the possession of first defendant were found a jar of preserved cherries, a tin of Carnation brand milk and ten fresh eggs. In the girdle of second defendant were found five fresh eggs.

Both defendants pleaded guilty to the theft and stated that they wanted to take the things to n friend.

D. Blumenthal, proprietor of the Marcel Cafe, was the complainant.

Mr. Lo said that, in his view, and he had told complainant so, the charge of larceny could not be sustained. The complainant felt very strongly regarding the assault with regard to his dignity, and desired a public apology from defendants, rather than a fine, as the apology would go much more in restraining defendants than any fine would do.

Asked by the Magistrate if they wished to associate themselves in an apology with their master, all defendants expressed willingness to do so.

In allowing the withdrawal, his Worship told defendants that what they had done would not do. It was a very bad thing for their business. If more incidents of this nature came before the Court in future, no withdrawal would be allowed.

Both defendants pleaded guilty to the theft and stated that they wanted to take the things to n friend.

His Lordship also made an order for the destruction of the banknotes.

Sentence of three years' hard labour was passed by the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Criminal Sessions this morning on Li Ngai-yau, aged 27, who was charged with being in possession of 40 forged $50 banknotes of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation at the Sui Wah Yuen Restaurant, 162, Queen's Road Central on May 22.

Accused pleaded guilty to the charge, and, when asked if he had anything to say before sentence was passed, said he was only earning a small commission in carrying the notes. If his Lordship would deal with him leniently, he would, on his coming out from gaol, endeavour to help the Government to catch the actual culprits.

His Lordship also made an order for the destruction of the banknotes.
